Free Press Seen Bulwark to Fair Trial Assurance

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A federal judge told an agreeing audience, The Ohio Newspaper Association, Friday that he "cannot see why we ought to be called upon to sacrifice the first amendment—free press — on the altar of the sixth—fair trial."

"I know of no greater bulwark to the preservation of fair trials then the continuation of a free press," said U. S. District Court Judge Frank W. Wilson of Chattanooga, Tenn. "Those who would curtail freedom of the press in the name of assuring a fair trial do a disservice to both."

Judge Wilson conceded that news coverage sometimes does make it hard for a judge to provide a fair trial, but he added, "No one has yet shown it renders the job impossible."

His speech was a highlight of a full day of activity, which saw presentation of the Governor's Awards to 11 Ohioans "for the advancement of the prestige of Ohio" in 1964, election of officers and presentation of numerous other awards.

Gov. James A. Rhodes presented the Governor's Awards.

Conceived by the Ohio Department of Development but awarded by the association, they went to: Ernest "Mooney" Warther, Dover, a master caver; Frederick R. Eckley, Delaware, executive vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Dr. Nelson Glueck, Cincinnati, president of Hebrew Union College; Dr. J. G. Harrar, Painesville, pesident of the Rockefeller Foundation; Dr. Robert M. Zollinger, Millersport, former president of the national societies of surgeons.

Robert Manry, Cleveland, newspaperman who sailed the Atlantic alone in a 13½-foot craft; Alton Ketchum, Cleveland, author; Louis B. Seltzer, Cleveland, recently retired editor of the Cleveland Press; Claude M. Blair, Cleveland, president of Ohio Bell Telephone Co.; William C. Earth Slides, Houses Shift

California Hit By Old Malady

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The suburban communities of Pacific Palisades and Bel-Air are on the move again.

Every year, rain or shine — but especially when it rains — the soft soil of the fault-fractured hills of Southern California shifts, settles, slides.

Anxious homeowners watch cracks run, spider-like, across the walls of their homes. Others, less lucky, are routed in the night as a torrent of dirt, rocks and mud shatters their homes and, sometimes, their financial futures.

It's an old story in Los Angeles, but it took on new meaning this week, after soil softened by recent rains began to slide once more.

Last Monday, three homes in Pacific Palisades were destroyed when the ground literally dropped out from under them and the resultant earthslides threatened three more.

On Thursday, a Bel-Air hillside broke loose, undermining a $250,000 mansion owned by Philip A. Stein. Three other costly homes are threatened by earth oozing downward at a speed of nine inches per hour.

The underground strain snapped cables and wires, disrupted sewer lines, electricity and other utilities, and knocked about 2,000 telephones out of service.

Below Stein's home, rocks and mud were 15 feet deep across Bellagio Road — a main artery to the exclusive district — and slipped over onto the crumbling lots of other hillside homes.

In Pacific Palisades, a team of damage estimators sent by Gov. Edmund G. Brown investigated the possibility of disaster relief funds for stricken families.

The three Palisades houses were destroyed when a 200-foot piece of hilltop dropped 20 feet, ripping up a low-lying street and inundating homes below with a cascade of dirt.

Investigation revealed that the three houses were built on land filled in after a 1959 earthslide had destroyed three earlier homes in the same spot.

Top Farmer, Farm Wife Are Named

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Young Farmer's Association named a 27-year-old Preble County farmer "Young Farmer of the Year" and a Fulton county mother of three "Young Farmer's Wife of the Year" at the organization's annual convention Friday night.

The awards went to Leonard Vonderhaar of Rt. 2, Camden, and Shirley Ann Shadle of near Wauseon, who were chosen for the top award from among five area winners.

Vonderhaar has been active in local young farmers association work and served as treasurer in 1964. He and his wife, Rita, and their three children, farm a 640-acre grain farm.

Mrs. Shadle manages the household and helps her husband, Richard, by acting as chief bookkeeper.

She has served as vice president of the Fulton County Farm Bureau women's committee secretary of the Farm Bureau Council, children's director of her chuch and pianist for the Sunday school.

The top award winners were from the organization's nearly 3,000 young men and women between the ages of 16 and 35.

LBJ Critics Report Mail Strongly Anti-Escalation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate critics of U.S. Viet Nam policy who said they were taking their case "over the head of the President to the American people" report their mail is running 30 to 1 against escalation of the conflict.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee reported that the mail also favors its public hearings by about the same ratio.

The count, made public Friday by the committee's staff, showed that up to last Tuesday 5,000 had expressed approval of committee chairman J. W. Fulbright's opposition to escalation and in favor of the public hearings.

"Those opposed," the staf reported in a note to Fulbright, "have increased to 170 mainly because of the hearings. The writers mainly object either because of the fact they are being held at all, or to the manner in which they are being conducted."

Fulbright concedes his mail normally would come most heavily from those who support his views. Before the hearings were recessed for the weekend Fulbright acknowledged "there has been some criticism of the committee for holding hearings at all. It has been said that we are giving aid and comfort to our enemies."

President Johnson told newsmen Friday he saw nothing wrong in his critics going to the people — as Sen Albert Gore, D-Tenn., put it — in order to reach the President.

"I think," said Johnson," it is always legitimate to go to the American people with a program or any problem you have. They are the bosses in this country and they are the ones that make the decision. . . ."

How was the President's mail running on the Viet Nam issue?

"I think that there are a good many people in the country that are troubled about Viet Nam and wish we could find some way to negotiate," replied Johnson, "but I think the country overwhelmingly supports the position that we have taken. I believe that the members of the House and Senate do likewise.'

New Arctic Air Mass Rolls Over Northwest

Arctic air, powered by strong northerly winds, swept into the northern Rockies today and heavy fog blanketed the middle Atlantic states.

Yankees Raid Red Base Camp

46 Cong Killed In U.S. Attack

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — In their first sizable contact with the enemy since allied troops captured the An Lao Valley two weeks ago, units of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile Division killed 46 Viet Cong and captured eight others as they shot their way into a Communist base camp, a U.S. spokesman reported today.

The cavalrymen engaged the good-size Viet Cong unit Friday while sweeping the valley about 300 miles north of Saigon. The guerrillas had been hiding since the cavalry, U.S. Marines, South Korean marines and South Vietnamese invaded the valley Jan. 28.

In a search today, the base camp — called major by Army spokesmen — yielded a truckload of weapons left behind by the Viet Cong.

It included 34 recoilless rifles, three rocket launchers, two machine-guns and 5,000 rounds of ammunition.

Police sources in Saigon said a Viet Cong terrorist was killed early today when his bomb exploded prematurely as he tried to booby trap an American Jeep.

The blast was outside a small U.S. billet which was not damaged. There were no casualties.

A grenade was hurled at a policeman Friday night, but it failed to go off. The man who threw it escaped.

Spurred by the 1st Cavalry's success Friday, allied troops spent today searching the An Lao alley for more Viet Cong. They found none.

The same lull struck other operations, including the continuing 101st Airborne sweep around Tuy Hoa on the coast and the 1st and 25th Infantry Division operations near the outskirts of Saigon.

Government troops, however, reported success on a multiregimental sweep in the Mekong Delta, 124 miles southwest of Saigon.

U.S. Nod to Viet Cong Seen Key to Peace Talk

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — An African member of the U.N. Security Council says the only way to get Viet Nam peace talks started is for the United States to recognize the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

"I believe the real situation in Viet Nam is the war between the NLF and the U. S. forces," Ambassador Sori Coulibaly of Mali said in an interview.

"The so-called government in Saigon is only existing because of the presence of the Americans," he added.

Coulibaly said the first step toward peace should be diplomatic action by neutral nations to win American recognition of the NLF, the political arm of the Communist guerrillas. He indicated that he saw no hope for a U.N. role to get peace talks started.

In contrast, U. S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg told newsmen Friday he believed the United Nations "will play a constructive role" to end the war.

He said the question of NLF representation at a peace conference could be negotiated if North Viet Nam really wanted peace talks. Goldberg added that the chief obstacle to holding a peace conference was Hanoi's insistence on preconditions. North Viet Nam has demanded, among other points, U. S. withdrawal from Viet Nam.

Goldberg said the United States was seeking claification of Hanoi's demand for recognition of the NLF but added that the United States could not consider the NLF a representative of the South Vietnamese government.

Referring to Goldberg's continuing consultations with U.N. diplomats, Coulibaly said that Mali and several other delegations have taken no part in the private talks to arrange possible Security Council action. He did not identify the other delegations.

Coulibaly said that no effective U.N. action was possible because North Viet Nam, Communist China and others involved in the war were not U.N. members.

He urged consultations to set up a conference within the framework of the 1954 Geneva agreements ending the French Indo-China War. He said the United Nations was deliberately ignored in the 1954 talks "for the same reasons that are valid in today's situation."

Asked if his views reflected those of other African U.N. members, Coulibaly said he had the feeling from informal consultations that "a large sector among the African delegates share the same point of view as I have expressed officially on this issue."

Mali joined Uganda and Nigeria in abstaining Feb. 2 on a U. S. proposal resolution to put Viet Nam on the Security Council agenda.

France also abstained. The proposal was approved, 9 to 2, but so far the council has not begun any official debate on the agenda item.

LBJ Makes Changes in His Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has dipped into the ranks of the White House staff and into the upper echelon of the Budget Bureau to fill key posts in his administration.

At a surprise news conference in his office late Friday, Johnson named White House special counsel Lee C. White as chairman of the Federal Power Commission, and selected longtime Deputy Budget Director Elmer B. Staats as comptroller general.

Johnson also named:

— Harry C. McPherson, who has been serving as White's deputy, to be special counsel.

— Robert H. Fleming, Washington bureau chief of American Broadcasting Co., as deputy press secretary "for the moment."

— Dixon Donnelley, assistant to the secretary of the treasury for public affairs, as assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

— Clifford L. Alexander Jr., an associate special counsel, to be deputy special counsel to succeed McPherson.

Imported Hypodermic Needles Are Banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has issued a second warning against use of two types of imported disposable hypodermic needles, many of which might not be sterile.

Dr. James L. Godard, commissioner of food and drugs, said Friday a serious health hazard could be created if users are not warned of the danger.

Goddard's initial warning Jan. 26 advised against use of "Jintan hyposterile disposable needles," or "Jintan hyposterile disposal blood needles."

4 Viet Combat Veterans Taken in Tow by Coeds

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Beautiful coeds showed four veterans of combat in Viet Nam the town Friday night and then took them to swinging fraternity parties.

"These girls are mighty pretty," said one soldier. The campus beauties said the soldiers were pretty neat, too.

The curvey University of Florida coeds — together with about 300 other students — met the officers at the airport when they flew in from Ft. Bragg, N.C. The students carried signs supporting U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

"We're having a good time," said 19-year old Beatty Wendt of Coral Gables, Fla., a homecoming sweetheart last year. She and six or seven other beauties are weekend dates for the Viet Nam veterans.

The get-together, to be capped by a campus rally Monday night, is a student project called "Operation Appreciation" for the soldiers fighting in Viet Nam.

The lucky bachelors are:

Jean Salisbury, 20, former Miss University of Florida, dated Stinaio Friday night and found him "nice and funny."

Why funny?

"Well some of these students ask a lot of silly questions.

"One asked, 'How can you tell the Viet Cong from the South Vietnamese.' He said, 'They all wear Mao tze-tung T-shirts'."

Hill, 22-year old company commander, says he wants to return to Viet Nam and probably will go back in June.

"I have but one thing to do — that's to back my President," he said.

Asked about a planned protest march by anti-Viet Nam war students at Florida, Hill said: "The basic difference between us and the Communists is that we have freedom of speech and the right to say what we want. If these people want to protest, that's fine. I'm a military man and I'm not engaged in making policy."

4 Children Killed In Beds by Fire

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP) — Four children, ranging in age from 6 weeks to 6 years, died in their beds early today when fire swept a three-story wooden tenement building in a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Dead on arrival at Beth Israel Hospital were Charles Owens Jr., 6; his brother, Keith, 5; a sister, Wendy, 15 months, and another brother, Troy Anthony, 6 weeks.

The parents, Charles and Betty Owens, jumped to safety from a window of their second-floor apartment.

4 Military Bases Alert To Meningitis

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Trainees at Lackland Air Force Base are in semi-isolation and authorities at three Army bases have taken similar measures to combat outbreaks of spinal meningitis, which has killed two recruits this week.

Meningitis, which is spread like a cold and has the same early symptons, has stricken at least 28 other trainees.

Authorities at Lackland, where all of the Air Force inductees are trained, announced that new recruits are to be sent to Amarillo Air Force Base, Tex., to avoid exposing more trainees to the disease.

Authorities reported five cases of meningitis at Lackland, three at Ft. Gordon, five at Ft. Polk, La., and 13 at Ft. Knox, Ky. Two who contracted the disease last month are recovering at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

There have been 58 cases of meningitis this year in the Army's 124,000 basic trainees, the Army said in Washington. Three of those infected have died.

Airmen trainees at Lackland were advised that there is safety in five feet of distance and told to try to maintain this much separation from each other.

No Alternative Viet Plan Seen

More U.S. Troops Slated for Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says the nation and Congress overwhelmingly support his policies in Viet Nam and that no one has presented "a clear alternative to recommend itself in preference to what we are doing.

"Most people wish we weren't out there, most people wish we didn't have a war, most people don't want to escalate it, and most people don't want to get out," Johnson told a surprise news conference in his White House office late Friday.

The President said more U.S. troops would be sent to South Viet Nam to bolster some 200,000 already there. "There will be additional men needed and they will be supplied," he said, adding that "I see at this moment no requirement for the reserves, but I wouldn't want to say that firmly."

Although "a good many people in the country . . . are troubled about Viet Nam and wish we could find some way to negotiate," Johnson told newsmen, "I think the country overwhelmingly supports the position that we have taken. I believe that the members of the House and the Senate do likewise."

While there seemed little question that the President's course has the support of a majority of both houses, the preponderance of mail to some senators indicated there may be a large body of dissent within the country.

The mail to those like Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who has questioned Johnson's Viet Nam policies, was running overwhelmingly against the administration.

The proportion of adverse mail was nearly as large to such supporters of presidential policy as Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Johnson was asked if he thought the Foreign Relations Committee's public hearings on Viet Nam, which have attempted to spotlight differences with administration policy, are helpful. "I don't see that I would be the proper one to judge," he replied, adding that he wouldn't find fault with hearings "as long as they are conducted in an at-

Klan 'Grand Empress; Holds Mute at Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee will try again Monday to quiz the "Grand Empress" about Ku Klux Klan plots for violence in Ohio.

Eloise Witte of Cincinnati five times failed to answer when called as a witness Friday.

She was to have testified after a youthful ex-klansman told of plans to blow up the White House, assassinate civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King during a speech at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, and eliminate Mrs. Witte's husband.

Mrs. Witte has been named in testimony as the "Grand Empress" of the National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Ohio.

Daniel N. Wagner, 19, charged in Columbus, Ohio, with armed robbery, testified he wrote a letter which outlines the series of plots to slay King and blow up the White House to kill President Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Also scheduled to be killed were Mrs. Witte's husband, because he threatened to "commit her to a mental institution."

The story of the klan in Ohio was one of bickering among several klan organizations and among officials in the various groups.

Other witnesses Friday were: Jim Harris, identified by the committee as a klan official from Cincinnati; Robert Annabelle, Parma Heights, Ohio, who testified he had never been a klan member or official; Parkie Scott, Oregonia, Ohio, and Flynn Harvey, Columbus, identified as the Grand Dragon of Ohio some members tried to oust.

Harris, Scott and Harvey invoked constitutional protection against answering most questions.

Annabelle said he had sought information about klan goals from Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton, but never joined and was never an official.

'We're Too Determined To Be Defeated'---HHH

BIEN HOA, South Viet Nam (AP) —"We're too strong to be afraid and too determined to be defeated," Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told American troops today as he pinned Silver Star medals on nine Army men.

The vice president, standing under a blazing sun at the field headquarters of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division repeated his assertion that "we will win" both the war on the battlefield and the struggle against privation, disease and illiteracy in South Viet Nam .

Humphrey, wearing an Army baseball style cap because of the sunshine, flew to the division headquarters, about 23 miles northwest of Saigon.

His helicopter was escorted by choppers armed with machine guns, part of the security which has marked his visit.

Hedge hopping across the countryside, Humphrey stopped to pay his respects to a Korean unit where he watched a karate exhibition, and to an Australian army battalion.

During his stop in the 1st Division area, Humphrey passed through the ward of a medical battalion and spoke with patients.

The Army lined up nine officers and enlisted men to receive the Silver Star from the vice president for gallantry in action.

He passed down the line of soldiers, pinning the red, white and blue ribbon and medal to their uniforms, and congratulating each man.

Humphrey was introduced to a 23-year-old soldier of the 1st Division who has been nominated for the Medal of Honor — Spec. 5. W. D. Burnett of Republic, Wash.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam, told newsmen that he had

U.S. Nod to Viet Cong Seen Key to Peace Talk

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — An African member of the U.N. Security Council says the only way to get Viet Nam peace talks started is for the United States to recognize the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front.

"I believe the real situation in Viet Nam is the war between the NLF and the U. S. forces," Ambassador Sori Coulibaly of Mali said in an interview.

"The so-called government in Saigon is only existing because of the presence of the Americans," he added.

Coulibaly said the first step toward peace should be diplomatic action by neutral nations to win American recognition of the NLF, the political arm of the Communist guerrillas. He indicated that he saw no hope for a U.N. role to get peace talks started.

In contrast, U. S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg told newsmen Friday he believed the United Nations "will play a constructive role" to end the war.

He said the question of NLF representation at a peace conference could be negotiated if North Viet Nam really wanted peace talks. Goldberg added that the chief obstacle to holding a peace conference was Hanoi's insistence on preconditions. North Viet Nam has demanded, among other points, U. S. withdrawal from Viet Nam.

Goldberg said the United States was seeking claification of Hanoi's demand for recognition of the NLF but added that the United States could not consider the NLF a representative of the South Vietnamese government.

Referring to Goldberg's continuing consultations with U.N. diplomats, Coulibaly said that Mali and several other delegations have taken no part in the private talks to arrange possible Security Council action. He did not identify the other delegations.

Coulibaly said that no effective U.N. action was possible because North Viet Nam, Communist China and others involved in the war were not U.N. members.

He urged consultations to set up a conference within the framework of the 1954 Geneva agreements ending the French Indo-China War. He said the United Nations was deliberately ignored in the 1954 talks "for the same reasons that are valid in today's situation."

Asked if his views reflected those of other African U.N. members, Coulibaly said he had the feeling from informal consultations that "a large sector among the African delegates share the same point of view as I have expressed officially on this issue."

Mali joined Uganda and Nigeria in abstaining Feb. 2 on a U. S. proposal resolution to put Viet Nam on the Security Council agenda.

France also abstained. The proposal was approved, 9 to 2, but so far the council has not begun any official debate on the agenda item.

LBJ Makes Changes in His Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has dipped into the ranks of the White House staff and into the upper echelon of the Budget Bureau to fill key posts in his administration.

At a surprise news conference in his office late Friday, Johnson named White House special counsel Lee C. White as chairman of the Federal Power Commission, and selected longtime Deputy Budget Director Elmer B. Staats as comptroller general.

Johnson also named:

— Harry C. McPherson, who has been serving as White's deputy, to be special counsel.

— Robert H. Fleming, Washington bureau chief of American Broadcasting Co., as deputy press secretary "for the moment."

— Dixon Donnelley, assistant to the secretary of the treasury for public affairs, as assistant secretary of state for public affairs.

— Clifford L. Alexander Jr., an associate special counsel, to be deputy special counsel to succeed McPherson.

Imported Hypodermic Needles Are Banned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has issued a second warning against use of two types of imported disposable hypodermic needles, many of which might not be sterile.

Dr. James L. Godard, commissioner of food and drugs, said Friday a serious health hazard could be created if users are not warned of the danger.

4 Viet Combat Veterans Taken in Tow by Coeds

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Beautiful coeds showed four veterans of combat in Viet Nam the town Friday night and then took them to swinging fraternity parties.

"These girls are mighty pretty," said one soldier. The campus beauties said the soldiers were pretty neat, too.

The curvey University of Florida coeds — together with about 300 other students — met the officers at the airport when they flew in from Ft. Bragg, N.C. The students carried signs supporting U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

"We're having a good time," said 19-year old Beatty Wendt of Coral Gables, Fla., a homecoming sweetheart last year. She and six or seven other beauties are weekend dates for the Viet Nam veterans.

The get-together, to be capped by a campus rally Monday night, is a student project called "Operation Appreciation" for the soldiers fighting in Viet Nam.

The lucky bachelors are:

Jean Salisbury, 20, former Miss University of Florida, dated Stinaio Friday night and found him "nice and funny."

Why funny?

"Well some of these students ask a lot of silly questions.

"One asked, 'How can you tell the Viet Cong from the South Vietnamese.' He said, 'They all wear Mao tze-tung T-shirts'."

Hill, 22-year old company commander, says he wants to return to Viet Nam and probably will go back in June.

"I have but one thing to do — that's to back my President," he said.

Asked about a planned protest march by anti-Viet Nam war students at Florida, Hill said: "The basic difference between us and the Communists is that we have freedom of speech and the right to say what we want. If these people want to protest, that's fine. I'm a military man and I'm not engaged in making policy."

4 Children Killed In Beds by Fire

PASSAIC, N.J. (AP) — Four children, ranging in age from 6 weeks to 6 years, died in their beds early today when fire swept a three-story wooden tenement building in a predominantly Negro neighborhood.

Dead on arrival at Beth Israel Hospital were Charles Owens Jr., 6; his brother, Keith, 5; a sister, Wendy, 15 months, and another brother, Troy Anthony, 6 weeks.

The parents, Charles and Betty Owens, jumped to safety from a window of their second-floor apartment.

4 Military Bases Alert To Meningitis

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Trainees at Lackland Air Force Base are in semi-isolation and authorities at three Army bases have taken similar measures to combat outbreaks of spinal meningitis, which has killed two recruits this week.

Meningitis, which is spread like a cold and has the same early symptons, has stricken at least 28 other trainees.

Authorities at Lackland, where all of the Air Force inductees are trained, announced that new recruits are to be sent to Amarillo Air Force Base, Tex., to avoid exposing more trainees to the disease.

Authorities reported five cases of meningitis at Lackland, three at Ft. Gordon, five at Ft. Polk, La., and 13 at Ft. Knox, Ky. Two who contracted the disease last month are recovering at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

There have been 58 cases of meningitis this year in the Army's 124,000 basic trainees, the Army said in Washington. Three of those infected have died.

Airmen trainees at Lackland were advised that there is safety in five feet of distance and told to try to maintain this much separation from each other.

No Alternative Viet Plan Seen

More U.S. Troops Slated for Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson says the nation and Congress overwhelmingly support his policies in Viet Nam and that no one has presented "a clear alternative to recommend itself in preference to what we are doing.

"Most people wish we weren't out there, most people wish we didn't have a war, most people don't want to escalate it, and most people don't want to get out," Johnson told a surprise news conference in his White House office late Friday.

The President said more U.S. troops would be sent to South Viet Nam to bolster some 200,000 already there. "There will be additional men needed and they will be supplied," he said, adding that "I see at this moment no requirement for the reserves, but I wouldn't want to say that firmly."

Although "a good many people in the country . . . are troubled about Viet Nam and wish we could find some way to negotiate," Johnson told newsmen, "I think the country overwhelmingly supports the position that we have taken. I believe that the members of the House and the Senate do likewise."

While there seemed little question that the President's course has the support of a majority of both houses, the preponderance of mail to some senators indicated there may be a large body of dissent within the country.

The mail to those like Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who has questioned Johnson's Viet Nam policies, was running overwhelmingly against the administration.

The proportion of adverse mail was nearly as large to such supporters of presidential policy as Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa.

Johnson was asked if he thought the Foreign Relations Committee's public hearings on Viet Nam, which have attempted to spotlight differences with administration policy, are helpful. "I don't see that I would be the proper one to judge," he replied, adding that he wouldn't find fault with hearings "as long as they are conducted in an at-

Klan 'Grand Empress; Holds Mute at Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee will try again Monday to quiz the "Grand Empress" about Ku Klux Klan plots for violence in Ohio.

Eloise Witte of Cincinnati five times failed to answer when called as a witness Friday.

She was to have testified after a youthful ex-klansman told of plans to blow up the White House, assassinate civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King during a speech at Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio, and eliminate Mrs. Witte's husband.

Mrs. Witte has been named in testimony as the "Grand Empress" of the National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Ohio.

Daniel N. Wagner, 19, charged in Columbus, Ohio, with armed robbery, testified he wrote a letter which outlines the series of plots to slay King and blow up the White House to kill President Johnson and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Also scheduled to be killed were Mrs. Witte's husband, because he threatened to "commit her to a mental institution."

The story of the klan in Ohio was one of bickering among several klan organizations and among officials in the various groups.

Other witnesses Friday were: Jim Harris, identified by the committee as a klan official from Cincinnati; Robert Annabelle, Parma Heights, Ohio, who testified he had never been a klan member or official; Parkie Scott, Oregonia, Ohio, and Flynn Harvey, Columbus, identified as the Grand Dragon of Ohio some members tried to oust.

Harris, Scott and Harvey invoked constitutional protection against answering most questions.

Annabelle said he had sought information about klan goals from Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton, but never joined and was never an official.

'We're Too Determined To Be Defeated' ---HHH

BIEN HOA, South Viet Nam (AP) —"We're too strong to be afraid and too determined to be defeated," Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey told American troops today as he pinned Silver Star medals on nine Army men.

The vice president, standing under a blazing sun at the field headquarters of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division repeated his assertion that "we will win" both the war on the battlefield and the struggle against privation, disease and illiteracy in South Viet Nam .

Humphrey, wearing an Army baseball style cap because of the sunshine, flew to the division headquarters, about 23 miles northwest of Saigon.

His helicopter was escorted by choppers armed with machine guns, part of the security which has marked his visit.

Hedge hopping across the countryside, Humphrey stopped to pay his respects to a Korean unit where he watched a karate exhibition, and to an Australian army battalion.

During his stop in the 1st Division area, Humphrey passed through the ward of a medical battalion and spoke with patients.

The Army lined up nine officers and enlisted men to receive the Silver Star from the vice president for gallantry in action.

He passed down the line of soldiers, pinning the red, white and blue ribbon and medal to their uniforms, and congratulating each man.

Humphrey was introduced to a 23-year-old soldier of the 1st Division who has been nominated for the Medal of Honor — Spec. 5. W. D. Burnett of Republic, Wash.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam, told newsmen that he had

Agriculture

An all-day Agronomy Clinic will be conducted at the Fairgrounds 4-H and Grange Building, County Fairgrounds Feb. 18.

Pickaway and Ross Counties are co-sponsoring this event. This is one of 36 clinics to be held in Ohio in 1966.

A new publication, the Ohio Agronomy Guide — 1966, will be introduced at the clinic. This booklet was designed to include all agronomic recommendations for Ohio in one publication.

Grain crop varieties and management recommendations will be presented by Dr. Lewis C. Saboe, Extension agronomist. Explored during his presentation will be varieties best adapted to soils, climate and growing season; varieties best suited for different uses; planting and seeding rates and optimum seedbed conditions for germination and growth.

FORAGE production recommendations will be presented by Dr. Edward W. Stroube, Extension agronomist. Forage varieties, seeding mixtures, establishment techniques, seeding dates, harvesting and pasturing dates and insect and disease control are areas to be discussed.

Soil and water management recommendations will be presented by Samuel W. Bone, Extension agronomist. Soil management as it affects infiltration, retention and drainage is to be discussed. Rainfall and climatic effects on soil management, water requirements by different crops, and special land surface management techniques for contro' of water runoff and erosion area areas also to be received during his presentation.

Crop fertility needs and recommendations will be presented by Alfred J. Baxter, Area Extension agent, agronomy. Fertilizer and lime needs of crops, application techniques, rate and time of application, deficiency symptoms, analysis techniques and applications for optimum yield, will be explored during his discussion.

George Hamrick, County Extension agent, says farmers attending the meeting will be given an opportunity to ask specific questions about their own problems. Exhibits are also planned, the county agent said. They will include information which will support the discussions.

The meeting will begin promptly at 9:30 a. m. and conclude at 3 p. m. Lunch will be served.

Crop production goals for the year ahead can be more easily attained by utilizing the information farmers will receive at the clinic.

Ohio Vets Told Pesticides Not Threat to Public Health

By GETRGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent,
Agriculture

Ohio veterinarians were told this week that agricultural chemicals, when properly used, do not threaten the public health.

Dr. Roger Yeary, Ohio State University Extension veterinarian - toxicologist, speaking to fellow veterinarians attending the 82nd annual meeting of the Ohio Veterinary Medical Assn., said that pesticides are not the public-health hazard many persons claim them to be.

"It is the consensus of medical opinion," he said, "that there are no known effects on the public health associated with chemical residues commonly found in food."

The specialist noted that pesticides account for about 5 per cent of all reported accidental poisonings by oral ingestion.

"THIS figure has remained fairly uniform for the past 25 years," he said. "Over half the deaths occur among children and are associated with pesticides used prior to the discovery of DDT, such as arsenic and mercury. Overdosage of aspirin caused almost twice as many accidental deaths as all pecticides combined."

The speaker quoted Drs. Frederick J. Stare of the Harvard School of Public Health and Dr. Wayland J. Hayes of the U. S. Public Health Service as saying that there have been no cases of ill health in this country from insecticide residues in food when formulations have been used according to directions.

Dr. Yeary noted that about 275 different chemical substances, including drugs or antibiotics, are permitted in the feed and drinking water of food-producing animals. An additional 50 to 100 drugs may be administered to animals by injection or by stomach tube, he said.

But of the substances that may be considered as drugs or pesticides, only about 10 are permitted to be present in meat and none are permitted in milk or eggs. This should not imply, Dr. Teary said, that few chemical substances are permitted in human food.

On the contrary, well over 1,500 different chemicals are permitted in food as preservatives, emulsifiers, flavoring agents, colors, spices, or nutritional supplements. These include table salt, vitamin D, iron and iodine. Greatest hazards in the use of agricultural chemicals are to those who are occupationally exposed.

Black Muslim Paper Left on Church Altar

Ag Agency Tries To Create Image Of Being for All People of Nation

By OVID MARTIN
AP Farm Editor

WASHINTON (AP)—This is the year in which the Agriculture Department hopes to make good progress in convincing the public that it is the "people's agency," and is not concerned solely with farmers.

The goal of department officials has been set forth by the very articulate George L. Mehren, an assistant secretary of agriculture in charge of many activities more directly related to consumers and non-farm folk than to producers.

In a recent speech, Mehren, a Californian, said he wished he could get rid of the "most fallacious cliches" of those applied to the department—namely that its single or exclusive mission is to serve farmers alone.

"The truth is that the department is first, last, and always dedicated to serving all the people—including farmers."

The assistant secretary said that about 90 per cent of "our man-hours—and over two-thirds of our expenditures —are devoted to services of primary benefit not to farmers as such, but to the general public—services to the most typical American of all, the consumer . . .

"We provide far more direct services to more consumers than any other department or agency of government."

Many speeches made last year by department officials, including Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, sought to emphasize the consumer aspects of their work. Undoubtedly, this effort has been prompted to some extent by criticisms of department expenditures particularly for farm program activities.

These attempts to make the department more generally popular have led to suggestions, even by Freeman himself, that the department's name be changed.

Mehren said that among a great many other things, the department administers the biggest recreation complex in the world. He referred to the 136 million acres of national forests, with their more than 7,000 camp and picnic grounds. 100 winter sports areas, and countless fishing streams and facilities for other types of rural recreation.

The department operates and maintains the biggest fire department in the world. He referred to the famous smokejumpers employed by the department to protect the national forests. These fighters are equipped with the latest fire-fighting tools, including helicopters, chemical - carrying airtankers, patrol planes and bulldozers.

The department, the assistant secretary reported, sells more timber than the biggest lumber company in the world. Almost one-fourth of the wood used by American industry for homes, paper, furniture and other products is supplied by the national forests.

To help in the development of rural resources, the department lends more money than the biggest bank in the world.

In addition, the department carries on the biggest emergency feeding programs in the world. Wherever disaster falls, either in this country or in friendly areas abroad, the department usually is the first on the scene with food.

For years, the department has been active in seeing to it that not only an ample supply of food if made available to consumers, but that it is pure, sanitary and of highest possible quality. It maintains various inspection services for food processing.

Mehren asserted the department has contributed heavily, through research and education, to make food a bargain for consumers. Last year, on the average, American consumers spent only 18.5 per cent of their disposable incomes for food. Five years earlier they spent 20 per cent, while a decade ago they spent 25 per cent.

Pickaway, Ross Clinic Sponsors

By GEORGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

An all-day Agronomy Clinic will be conducted at the Fairgrounds 4-H and Grange Building, County Fairgrounds Feb. 18.

Pickaway and Ross Counties are co-sponsoring this event. This is one of 36 clinics to be held in Ohio in 1966.

A new publication, the Ohio Agronomy Guide — 1966, will be introduced at the clinic. This booklet was designed to include all agronomic recommendations for Ohio in one publication.

Grain crop varieties and management recommendations will be presented by Dr. Lewis C. Saboe. Extension agronomist. Explored during his presentation will be varieties best adapted to soils, climate and growing season; varieties best suited for different uses; planting and seeding rates and optimum seedbed conditions for germination and growth.

FORAGE production recommendation will be presented by Dr. Edward W. Stroube. Extension agronomist. Forage varieties, seeding mixtures, establishment techniques, seeding dates, harvesting and pasturing dates and insect and disease control are areas to be discussed.

Soil and water management recommendations will be presented by Samuel W. Bone, Extension agronomist. Soil management as it affects infiltration, retention and drainage is to be discussed. Rainfall and climatic effects on soil management, water requirements by different crops, and special land surface management techniques for contro' of water runoff and erosion area areas also to be received during his presentation.

Crop fertility needs and recommendations will be presented by Alfred J. Baxter. Area Extension agent, agronomy. Fertilizer and lime needs of crops, application techniques, rate and time of application, deficiency symptoms, analysis techniques and applications for optimum yield, will be explored during his discussion.

George Hamrick, County Extension agent, says farmers attending the meeting will be given an opportunity to ask specific questions about their own problems. Exhibits are also planned, the county agent said. They will include information which will support the discussions.

The meeting will begin promptly at 9:30 a. m. and conclude at 3 p. m. Lunch will be served.

Crop production goals for the year ahead can be more easily attained by utilizing the information farmers will receive at the clinic.

Ohio Vets Told Pesticides Not Threat to Public Health

By GETRGE HAMRICK
County Extension Agent, Agriculture

Ohio veterinarians were told this week that agricultural chemicals, when properly used, do not threaten the public health.

Dr. Roger Yeary, Ohio State University Extension veterinarian - toxicologist, speaking to fellow veterinarians attending the 82nd annual meeting of the Ohio Veterinary Medical Assn., said that pesticides are not the public-health hazard many persons claim them to be.

"It is the consensus of medical opinion," he said, "that there are no known effects on the public health associated with chemical residues commonly found in food."

The specialist noted that pesticides account for about 5 per cent of all reported accidental poisonings by oral ingestion.

"THIS figure has remained fairly uniform for the past 25 years," he said. "Over half the deaths occur among children and are associated with pesticides used prior to the discovery of DDT, such as arsenic and mercury. Overdosage of aspirin caused almost twice as many accidental deaths as all pecticides combined."

The speaker quoted Drs. Frederick J. Stare of the Harvard School of Public Health and Dr. Wayland J. Hayes of the U. S. Public Health Service as saying that there have been no cases of ill health in this country from insecticide residues in food when formulations have been used according to directions.

Dr. Yeary noted that about 275 different chemical substances, including drugs or antibiotics, are permitted in the feed and drinking water of food-producing animals. An additional 50 to 100 drugs may be administered to animals by injection or by stomach tube, he said.

But of the substances that may be considered as drugs or pesticides, only about 10 are permitted to be present in meat and none are permitted in milk or eggs. This should not imply, Dr. Teary said, that few chemical substances are permitted in human food.

On the contrary, well over 1,500 different chemicals are permitted in food as preservatives, emulsifiers, flavoring agents, colors, spices, or nutritional supplements. These include table salt, vitamin D, iron and iodine. Greatest hazards in the use of agricultural chemicals are to those who are occupationally exposed.

Black Muslim Paper Left on Church Altar

4-H Club News

By JAMES R. HELT
County Extension Agent, 4-H

Conservation is everyone's business and especially those 4-H members who enroll in one of the nature and conservation 4-H projects. These projects present many interesting and challenging opportunities for you.

The projects include exploring the out of doors, Ohio birds, soil and water conservation projects, farm mapping and soil testing, entomology and special conservation projects. The members go on field trips, help with community conservation and beautification projects, build conservation exhibits and displays to stimulate public interest, give talks and demonstrations and have a lot of fun in learning.

"Use Without Waste" is the motto of the Pickaway County 4-H club under the leadership of Donald Archer.

The organizational meeting of the Conservation Club will be Feb. 28, at 8 p. m. in the small meeting room of the 4-H and Grange Building. All interested persons are invited to be present. Members from other clubs are welcome to take a conservation project in the county club.

The Perry Farmers of Tomorrow will hold their achievement meeting on Saturday, Feb. 12, at the New Holland Methodist Church. A carry-in supper at 6:30 p. m. is scheduled to preceed the program. Members will receive their achievement awards during the program.

Elwyn Hulse and Dick Somers are the advisors.

The Jackson Twp. Jolly Tasters and Basters 4-H club will will hold their organizational meeting at 7:30 p. m. February 15, at the Jackson School. Young people interested in home economics projects are invited.

Contact Mrs. Lloyd Minor, Mrs. George Mowery or Mrs. Keith Bidwell, the advisers, for further information.

Did you know? Paul Teegardin, of Duvall, attended 4-H Club Week at Ohio State University in 1918.

The Slow Moving Vehicle Emblem — SMV — will soon become very noticeable on all machinery operated on a highway. The law signed by Gov. Rhodes will become effective on April 1, 1966.

The SMV emblem will be required on any vehicle designed to operate at 25 m.p.h. or less. This signal must be used during daytime hours. In addition, both the emblem and the light will be required at night.

4-H members are planning a SMV safety campaign during the next few weeks. They will be taking orders for the emblems and will have information concerning their use.

Ag Agency Tries To Create Image Of Being for All People of Nation

By OVID MARTIN
AP Farm Editor

WASHINTON (AP)—This is the year in which the Agriculture Department hopes to make good progress in convincing the public that it is the "people's agency," and is not concerned solely with farmers.

The goal of department officials has been set forth by the very articulate George L. Mehren, an assistant secretary of agriculture in charge of many activities more directly related to consumers and non-farm folk than to producers.

In a recent speech, Mehren, a Californian, said he wished he could get rid of the "most fallacious cliches" of those applied to the department—namely that its single or exclusive mission is to serve farmers alone.

"The truth is that the department is first, last, and always dedicated to serving all the people—including farmers."

The assistant secretary said that about 90 per cent of "our man-hours—and over two-thirds of our expenditures —are devoted to services of primary benefit not to farmers as such, but to the general public—services to the most typical American of all, the consumer . . .

"We provide far more direct services to more consumers than any other department or agency of government."

Many speeches made last year by department officials, including Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, sought to emphasize the consumer aspects of their work. Undoubtedly, this effort has been prompted to some extent by criticisms of department expenditures particularly for farm program activities.

These attempts to make the department more generally popular have led to suggestions, even by Freeman himself, that the department's name be changed.

Mehren said that among a great many other things, the department administers the biggest recreation complex in the world. He referred to the 186 million acres of national forests, with their more than 7,000 camp and picnic grounds. 100 winter sports areas, and countless fishing streams and facilities for other types of rural recreation.

The department operates and maintains the biggest fire department in the world. He referred to the famous smokejumpers employed by the department to protect the national forests. These fighters are equipped with the latest fire-fighting tools, including helicopters, chemical - carrying airtankers, patrol planes and bulldozers.

The department, the assistant secretary reported, sells more timber than the biggest lumber company in the world. Almost one-fourth of the wood used by American industry for homes, paper, furniture and other products is supplied by the national forests.

To help in the development of rural resources, the department lends more money than the biggest bank in the world.

In addition, the department carries on the biggest emergency feeding programs in the world. Wherever disaster falls, either in this country or in friendly areas abroad, the department usually is the first on the scene with food.

For years, the department has been active in seeing to it that not only an ample supply of food if made available to consumers, but that it is pure, sanitary and of highest possible quality. It maintains various inspection services for food processing.

Mehren asserted the department has contributed heavily, through research and education, to make food a bargain for consumers. Last year, on the average, American consumers spent only 18.5 per cent of their disposable incomes for food. Five years earlier they spent 20 per cent, while a decade ago they spent 25 per cent.

Newsy Notes

By JUDY CHAPMAN
Home Economics Agent

Going to the supermarket today? Look around. You'll see anywhere from seven to ten thousand different items. They'll be packaged in about that many different ways, too.

The package should protect contents from contamination, make storage convenient, describe what is in the package and how to prepare it and tell who makes the product, packs or distributes it.

Some common questions from homemakers are answered below. Do you find one that plagues you?

"What's the sense of such strange names for sizes — like Jumbo?" There isn't much sense in it. Look at the weight or volume of the contents which must be listed. Often a package that contains less food looks larger because of th package construction. A tall thin box looks larger than a short thick box when you look at the front sides side by side.

"Why is there empty space at the top of some packages?" Some contents settle during shipping. The package you want to beware of is the one that has empty space at the bottom because the bottom has been raised. Look at the cottage cheese and chip dip boxes. You may pay more for one box over another because it looks like it holds more.

"Why do labels use long technical words when listing the contents?" The law requires it. This helps the homemaker evaluate the product quality when she knows what they mean. Ingredients must be called by common names if they have one — for example, "sodium chloride" is "salt." Ingredients must be listed in decreasing order of predominance by weight.

"Why are no ingredients sometimes listed?" When the product must be made according to standard recipes, the ingredients need not be listed. Mayonnaise or catsup are made according to such recipes.

"What about food pictures? Are they for real?" Absolutely.

"Who decides what a serving is? What is the customer to think when a package that says "serves 4" hardly serves 3?" Serving size should depend on the age, appetite, and activity of the person doing the eating. It also depends on how much else is served in the meal. The teen-age son won't eat the same amount as an aging grandmother. You soon realize how large a serving each person wants or how many hamburgers you make from a certain amount of groundmeat. Many companies use a ½ cup of vegetables or fruits as a guide to go by. Maybe your teenage son eats 2 servings while you just eat ½ of one.

Are you building or redecorating? Paneling is versatile, easy to apply, decorative and easy to care for. There are many different styles, textures, colors of wood and other materials.

Prices per square foot range from 10 cents to $3, according to the material and finish.

A cloth dampened with a cream wax or mild detergent and water solution used occasionally will keep your paneling clean and bright.

The vertical grain of the wood can make the room look shorter and the walls higher. The horizontal grain makes the room look longer and the ceiling lower.

Paneling leads the eye to fireplace or bookshelves—wherever you want a center of interest. This medium may create a room divider and storage wall.

Fire-retandant and incombustible paneling materials are available. Some are waterproof or decay resistant. Gypsum paneling, for example, is used in bathrooms where moisture causes problems.

Paneling that has a veneer surface of genuine wood is a popular wall material. The face veneer is made of any type of wood — soft or hard — from alder to zebrawood. This is laminated, or glued, to a large panel of plywood, hardboard or particleboard. Some plywoods without a face veneer have been sandblasted, steel brushed, or otherwise finished attractively. Other panelings are finished with marble, mosaic, natural wood flake or are plastic covered. The finish may be smooth or rough to the touch.

Widths average about four feet. Lengths are usually 8 feet but longer pieces may be obtained. Thicknesses range from ⅛ to ½ inch. The ⅛ in pieces will fit into some curves.

Polyster fiber is one of the most commonly used man-made in our modern fabrics. It is often blended with cotton.

One of polyester's main features is its easy care. It resists wrinkles, holds shape, resists both shrinkage and stretching. Even though it is wrinkle resistant, once a wrinkle, pleat or crease has been pressed or "heat-set" in it will last indefinitely.

Some of the problems with this fiber are that it retains oil. That is, a grease or butter spot will be hard to remove. This is especially true if the garment hasn't yet been washed the first time. It also pills readily. This is decreased when blended with cotton or when used in filament (long fiber) form. Most often we see polyester used in staple (short fiber) form.

Polyester was developed for automatic dryers. Many of the labels on these garments say "drip dry." If you drip it dry it will probably need ironing. Be careful, though, not to "overdry" the garment in the dryer as this "heat sets" wrinkles in the fabric.

Some trade names for polyester are dacron, fortrel, kodal and vycron.

Bondsman Is Sought In Cincinnati Slaying

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Police were seeking a Cincinnati man today in connection with the slaying of a father of five small children.

Police issued a warrant charging Prince Vinson, 56, manager of a bail bonding company, of murder in the death of Sherman Lewis Simpson, 30, Newport.

Simpson was found unconscious early Friday on a Newport street. He died several hours later of a gunshot wound.

2 More Labor Bills Opposed In U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sidetracking of the union shop bill casts a shadow over two other measures strongly backed by the AFL-CIO.

The other two would boost the minimum wage and apply it to more workers and increase unemployment compensation payments.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who directed the filibuster which blocked repeal of section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act, indicated that he might use the same tactics against the other two measures. Section 14B allows states to ban union shop contracts under which covered employes must join the union. Nineteen states ban such contracts.

Asked by a reporter if he believed the minimum wage and unemployment compensation measures should be filibustered Dirksen replied, "I feel equally strongly about them."

He added that he would not say definitely, however, until he knew the final form of the bills.

Backers of the 14B repeal bill failed again Thursday in their attempt to invoke cloture and thus choke off the filibuster which has blocked efforts since Jan. 24 to bring the measure before the Senate.

The vote was 50 for cloture and 49 against, 16 short of the required two-thirds. This was one vote less for cloture than was cast in a cloture test Tuesday.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield dropped his motion to bring up the bill after Thursday's vote and said that, so far as he knew now, the legislation was dead for this session.

However, Democratic leaders consider the two other labor bills to be very much alive. President Johnson has recommended action on them as he did on the union shop bill.

Both the House and Senate Labor committees have completed public hearings on the minimum wage proposal.

The House group also wrote its version of the legislation last year and approved it for floor debate although it never was called up.

The committee in its bill sought to increase the present $1.25 wage floor to $1.75 as well as providing for a broad expansion of the coverage of the Wages and Hours Act.

Johnson last year did not propose an increase in the wage floor but did ask that more than four million additional workers be brought under the act.

This year the President has said some unspecified boost in the minimum wage is justified.

The House committee is reconsidering the legislation in the light of the new recommendations.

The House Ways and Means Committee completed hearings last year on the unemployment compensation bill. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said his group would go to work early this session to draft a bill.

In this field, Johnson proposed that federal standards be set up and that the payments be raised substantially. Under the law now, the size and duration of payments is determined by the states.

Bribery Is Way of Life with Nigerians

LAOS, Nigeria (AP) — "Dash me, dash me," can be the plaintive request of a ragged Nigerian youngster or the authoritative demand of a suave Nigerian politician.

Dash — meaning bribe — has for years been a way of life in this steamy former British colonial territory which gained independence in 1960. The country's new military regime has declared war on the custom.

Early settlers called the island capital of Lagos the white man's grave as they tried to establish trading posts along the marshy mosquito - ridden swamps.

Today, multistory buildings conceal the sprawling tin-roofed shanty towns, where thousands of Nigerians live and die among open sewers, rat-infested dwellings and appaling poverty.

Nigeria is populated by 52 million people. A onetime showplace of Britain's colonial Africa, the government fell last month in a swift coup by the Nigerian army.

Bribery and corruption riddled Nigerian politics and business. With the country under military law, most former government ministers have abandoned their plush automobiles and swank luxury mansions. Many have fled to distant tribal areas in an effort to elude the new military regime.

Dash is the Nigerian's way of politely asking for a bribe — whether he be politician or pauper. But over the years, dashing snowballed into a countrywide abuse of power practiced by politician and businessmen alike.

Bedeviled by political rivalry tribalism and religious ferment, many Nigerian politicians and businessmen bribed their way into immense political and financial power.

Dashing is commonplace in all walks of Nigerian life. The elevator boy, chauffeur, shopkeeper or clerk expects the soft touch before he opens a door or seals a book.

To clinch a business deal, dash is required from the lowest secretary to the top man. It will facilitate a speedier business appointment.

And the top man is not embarrassed when he asks for a sizable bribe if you intend doing business with him. Unless his palm is crossed with cash, competitors will step in ahead. They'll get in anyway if their dash is larger.

Most Nigerians see little wrong in accepting dash.

Anything is obtainable if the dash is large enough — a seat on a fully booked plane, preferential treatment in private hospitals, a new house or the best room in a fully booked hotel.

For workers seeking employment in offices or local business, a dash to the boss or foreman is often essential to ensure employment. Many employes pay off their bribe on a monthly "pay as you earn" basis.

Dash and its accompanying corruption resulted in the death of hundreds during the recent western region elections, which ended in widespread political rioting. Election boxes were switched and opposition leaders bribed to induce their followers to vote for the ruling party.

In the first flush of military government, most Nigerians applauded the army takeover. Many expressed hope that the country's wealth would be more evenly distributed.

Maj. Gen. Johnson Aguiyi Ironsi, head of the new military regime, hopes to stamp out the country's age-old system of dashing.

Many doubt he will succeed.

One longtime white businessman commented:

"He may succeed in political and government circles but in the business world and among Nigeria's 52 million people, the dash is akin to the European habit of tipping. If you want quick results in Nigeria you've got to pay for them.'

Red China Fires Blast At Russia

TOKYO (AP) —Communist China accused the Soviet Union Friday of joining the United States, India and Japan in forging a "ring of encirclement" around Red China.

"The policy of the new leaders of the Communist party of the Soviet Union is to unite with U.S. imperialism and the reactionaries of various countires against China," said a 6,500-word article in Red Flag, the theoretical organ of the Chinese Communist party.

The article said Red China will not cooperate with the Soviets in Viet Nam or elsewhere until the Soviet leaders end their alleged anti-Chinese alliances with the other three natoins.

It said a Soviet-American-Indian alliance was disclosed by the talks held between U.S. Vice President Hubert Humphrey and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin at the funeral last month of Indian Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, as well as remarks made by Humphrey afterward.

Boy, 15, Confesses Setting Apartment Fire

CINCINNATI (AP)—A 15-year-old boy has admitted causing a $20,000 fire in an apartment building because the landlady was "mad" at him, police reported.

Police said the youth admitted Friday he started the Wednesday night fire because the landlady had made him quit breaking soft drink bottles in front of the building. There were no injuries.

Dormant Sprays Control Pests

Dormant oil sprays may be an answer if you have problems controlling such pests as aphids, scale insects, and spider mites on ornamental trees and shrubs and fruit trees.

Extension Entomologists at the Ohio State University say "crusts" on branches of dormant trees and shrubs generally indicate that scale insects are present. Even though most insect eggs will be too small to identify, you can be sure they're there.

Time for application of the dormant oil sprays is early in the spring before buds begin to swell. However, you should wait for a mild day. Do not use sprays in cold weather or immediately before freezing temperatures are forecast.

You can buy these spray materials from most garden supply stores and supply centers. Be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions for mixing and applying. Keep leftover spray out of reach of pets and children.

Landlady Is Bequeathed $100,000 by Suicide

CLEVELAND (AP) — Emil Golasik, 69, bequethed $100,000 to his landlady, then jumped into the Cuyahoga River, police said.

Golasik wrote three different wills. None was witnessed and Ohio law says an unwitnessed will is invalid. Only the appearance of some presently unknown relative could change the situation.

Golasik, a bachelor, earned around $8,000 a year over-seeing the heating and cooling system at the Statler-Hilton Hotel. Apparently he inherited most of the money, friends said.

The program under the direction of Mrs. Lawrence Reid opened with a vocal solo, "In Times Like These" by Mary Ellen Downs accompanied at the piano by Brenda Reid.

She then presented a contest on Lincoln which proved very interesting and educational, with all members taking part. Kenneth Reid had the most correct answers. Brenda Reid played piano solo and Mrs. Reid closed her program with a patriotic reading, "Look Up My People".

Salt OK for Ice But Not Plants

Salt is great for melting snow on sidewalks, but it's not so good for plants.

You can kill shrubs, grass and other plants by piling them with snow highly concentrated with salt. Be careful not only where you shovel the snow but where it will drain when it melts. This may explain why you can't succeed in growing plants in certain areas.

Sand is probably the safest material to use on sidewalks and driveways when you need to protect plants. Some persons use fertilizer on slipper spots, but this material is a salt and also is expensive when used for this purpose.

Remove any heavy snow from spreading evergreens and if the temperature is really low, be sure to remove it gently because the cold makes the branches snap easily. However, snow isn't much or a problem on most plants.

In fact, when spread around such plants as rose bushes, snow acts as an insulator to protect the plants from cold temperatures and strong winds.

Newsy Notes

By JUDY CHAPMAN
Home Economics Agent

Going to the supermarket today? Look around. You'll see anywhere from seven to ten thousand different items. They'll be packaged in about that many different ways, too.

The package should protect contents from contamination, make storage convenient, describe what is in the package and how to prepare it and tell who makes the product, packs or distributes it.

Some common questions from homemakers are answered below. Do you find one that plagues you?

"What's the sense of such strange names for sizes — like Jumbo?" There isn't much sense in it. Look at the weight or volume of the contents which must be listed. Often a package that contains less food looks larger because of the package construction. A tall thin box looks larger than a short thick box when you look at the front sides side by side.

"Why is there empty space at the top of some packages?" Some contents settle during shipping. The package you want to beware of is the one that has empty space at the bottom because the bottom has been raised. Look at the cottage cheese and chip dip boxes. You may pay more for one box over another because it looks like it holds more.

"Why do labels use long technical words when listing the contents?" The law requires it. This helps the homemaker evaluate the product quality when she knows what they mean. Ingredients must be called by common names if they have one — for example, "sodium chloride" is "salt." Ingredients must be listed in decreasing order of predominance by weight.

"Why are no ingredients sometimes listed?" When the product must be made according to standard recipes, the ingredients need not be listed. Mayonnaise or catsup are made according to such recipes.

"What about food pictures? Are they for real?" Absolutely.

"Who decides what a serving is? What is the customer to think when a package that says "serves 4" hardly serves 3?" Serving size should depend on the age, appetite, and activity of the person doing the eating. It also depends on how much else is served in the meal. The teen-age son won't eat the same amount as an aging grandmother. You soon realize how large a serving each person wants or how many hamburgers you make from a certain amount of groundmeat. Many companies use a ½ cup of vegetables or fruits as a guide to go by. Maybe your teenage son eats 2 servings while you just eat ½ of one.

Are you building or redecorating? Paneling is versatile, easy to apply, decorative and easy to care for. There are many different styles, textures, colors of wood and other materials.

Prices per square foot range from 10 cents to $3, according to the material and finish.

A cloth dampened with a cream wax or mild detergent and water solution used occasionally will keep your paneling clean and bright.

The vertical grain of the wood can make the room look shorter and the walls higher. The horizontal grain makes the room look longer and the ceiling lower.

Paneling leads the eye to fireplace or bookshelves—wherever you want a center of interest. This medium may create a room divider and storage wall.

Fire-retandant and incombustible paneling materials are available. Some are waterproof or decay resistant. Gypsum paneling, for example, is used in bathrooms where moisture causes problems.

Paneling that has a veneer surface of genuine wood is a popular wall material. The face veneer is made of any type of wood — soft or hard — from alder to zebrawood. This is laminated, or glued, to a large panel of plywood, hardboard or particleboard. Some plywoods without a face veneer have been sandblasted, steel brushed, or otherwise finished attractively. Other panelings are finished with marble, mosaic, natural wood flake or are plastic covered. The finish may be smooth or rough to the touch.

Widths average about four feet. Lengths are usually 8 feet but longer pieces may be obtained. Thicknesses range from ⅛ to ½ inch. The ⅛ in pieces will fit into some curves.

Polyster fiber is one of the most commonly used man-made in our modern fabrics. It is often blended with cotton.

One of polyester's main features is its easy care. It resists wrinkles, holds shape, resists both shrinkage and stretching. Even though it is wrinkle resistant, once a wrinkle, pleat or crease has been pressed or "heat-set" in it will last indefinitely.

Some of the problems with this fiber are that it retains oil. That is, a grease or butter spot will be hard to remove. This is especially true if the garment hasn't yet been washed the first time. It also pills readily. This is decreased when blended with cotton or when used in filament (long fiber) form. Most often we see polyester used in staple (short fiber) form.

Polyester was developed for automatic dryers. Many of the labels on these garments say "drip dry." If you drip it dry it will probably need ironing. Be careful, though, not to "overdry" the garment in the dryer as this "heat sets" wrinkles in the fabric.

Some trade names for polyester are dacron, fortrel, kodal and vycron.

Bondsman Is Sought In Cincinnati Slaying

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP)—Police were seeking a Cincinnati man today in connection with the slaying of a father of five small children.

Police issued a warrant charging Prince Vinson, 56, manager of a bail bonding company, of murder in the death of Sherman Lewis Simpson, 30, Newport.

Simpson was found unconscious early Friday on a Newport street. He died several hours later of a gunshot wound.

2 More Labor Bills Opposed In U.S. Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The sidetracking of the union shop bill casts a shadow over two other measures strongly backed by the AFL-CIO.

The other two would boost the minimum wage and apply it to more workers and increase unemployment compensation payments.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, who directed the filibuster which blocked repeal of section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act, indicated that he might use the same tactics against the other two measures. Section 14B allows states to ban union shop contracts under which covered employes must join the union. Nineteen states ban such contracts.

Asked by a reporter if he believed the minimum wage and unemployment compensation measures should be filibustered Dirksen replied, "I feel equally strongly about them."

He added that he would not say definitely, however, until he knew the final form of the bills.

Backers of the 14B repeal bill failed again Thursday in their attempt to invoke cloture and thus choke off the filibuster which has blocked efforts since Jan. 24 to bring the measure before the Senate.

The vote was 50 for cloture and 49 against, 16 short of the required two-thirds. This was one vote less for cloture than was cast in a cloture test Tuesday.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield dropped his motion to bring up the bill after Thursday's vote and said that, so far as he knew now, the legislation was dead for this session.

However, Democratic leaders consider the two other labor bills to be very much alive. President Johnson has recommended action on them as he did on the union shop bill.

Both the House and Senate Labor committees have completed public hearings on the minimum wage proposal.

The House group also wrote its version of the legislation last year and approved it for floor debate although it never was called up.

The committee in its bill sought to increase the present $1.25 wage floor to $1.75 as well as providing for a broad expansion of the coverage of the Wages and Hours Act.

Johnson last year did not propose an increase in the wage floor but did ask that more than four million additional workers be brought under the act.

This year the President has said some unspecified boost in the minimum wage is justified.

The House committee is reconsidering the legislation in the light of the new recommendations.

The House Ways and Means Committee completed hearings last year on the unemployment compensation bill. Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said his group would go to work early this session to draft a bill.

In this field, Johnson proposed that federal standards be set up and that the payments be raised substantially. Under the law now, the size and duration of payments is determined by the states.

Bribery Is Way of Life with Nigerians

LAOS, Nigeria (AP) — "Dash me, dash me," can be the plaintive request of a ragged Nigerian youngster or the authoritative demand of a suave Nigerian politician.

Dash — meaning bribe — has for years been a way of life in this steamy former British colonial territory which gained independence in 1960. The country's new military regime has declared war on the custom.

Early settlers called the island capital of Lagos the white man's grave as they tried to establish trading posts along the marshy mosquito - ridden swamps.

Today, multistory buildings conceal the sprawling tin-roofed shanty towns, where thousands of Nigerians live and die among open sewers, rat-infested dwellings and appaling poverty.

Nigeria is populated by 52 million people. A onetime showplace of Britain's colonial Africa, the government fell last month in a swift coup by the Nigerian army.

Bribery and corruption riddled Nigerian politics and business. With the country under military law, most former government ministers have abandoned their plush automobiles and swank luxury mansions. Many have fled to distant tribal areas in an effort to elude the new military regime.

Dash is the Nigerian's way of politely asking for a bribe — whether he be politician or pauper. But over the years, dashing snowballed into a countrywide abuse of power practiced by politician and businessmen alike.

Bedeviled by political rivalry tribalism and religious ferment, many Nigerian politicians and businessmen bribed their way into immense political and financial power.

Dashing is commonplace in all walks of Nigerian life. The elevator boy, chauffeur, shopkeeper or clerk expects the soft touch before he opens a door or seals a book.

To clinch a business deal, dash is required from the lowest secretary to the top man. It will facilitate a speedier business appointment.

And the top man is not embarrassed when he asks for a sizable bribe if you intend doing business with him. Unless his palm is crossed with cash, competitors will step in ahead. They'll get in anyway if their dash is larger.

Most Nigerians see little wrong in accepting dash.

Anything is obtainable if the dash is large enough — a seat on a fully booked plane, preferential treatment in private hospitals, a new house or the best room in a fully booked hotel.

For workers seeking employment in offices or local business, a dash to the boss or foreman is often essential to ensure employment. Many employes pay off their bribe on a monthly "pay as you earn" basis.

Dash and its accompanying corruption resulted in the death of hundreds during the recent western region elections, which ended in widespread political rioting. Election boxes were switched and opposition leaders bribed to induce their followers to vote for the ruling party.

In the first flush of military government, most Nigerians applauded the army takeover. Many expressed hope that the country's wealth would be more evenly distributed.

Maj. Gen. Johnson Aguiyi Ironsi, head of the new military regime, hopes to stamp out the country's age-old system of dashing.

Many doubt he will succeed.

One longtime white businessman commented:

"He may succeed in political and government circles but in the business world and among Nigeria's 52 million people, the dash is akin to the European habit of tipping. If you want quick results in Nigeria you've got to pay for them.'

Lincoln's Genius Is Unexplained

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Of all the great captains of earth the one most affectionately remembered probably is he who was born in a Kentucky log cabin 157 years ago Saturday.

Success came late and death came early to Abraham Lincoln.

There is no explaining his genius. As did those other great captains of pen and sword, William Shakespeare and Joan of Arc, he sprang seemingly from nowhere to immortal fame.

Almost from birth Lincoln appeared likely to wind up an also-ran in life's race.

He was poor and had little formal schooling. He failed in business as a storekeeper. He was unlucky in both love and politics, it seemed.

His youthful sweetheart, Ann Rutledge, died. The first woman he proposed to, Mary Owens, turned him down and explained later:

"Mr. Lincoln was deficient in those little links which make up the path of a woman's happiness."

His subsequent marriage to Mary Todd proved a stormy one.

He lost more elections than he won. Anticipating defeat in his first race for a seat in the Illinois Legislature in 1832 — and he did lose — Lincoln wrote:

"If the good people in their wisdom shall see fit to keep me in the background, I have been too familiar with disappointment to be much chagrined."

When his business failed, leaving him debt-ridden, he became a village postmaster. Had he succumbed to his tendency to melancholy and self-doubt, young Abe might well have disappeared into the mists of history, just another obscure frontier failure.

But he persisted. He turned to the study of law and grammar. Slowly his star rose. In 1856 he remarked jokingly during a losing race for senator against Stephen Douglas:

"Nobody ever expected me to be president. In my poor, lean, lank face nobody has ever seen that any cabbages were sprouting."

But he was wrong there. Four years later he had become president. And less than five years later, only 56, he was killed by an assassin. But in that brief period he had become the indispensable human fulcrum that kept the American nation from teeter-tottering into ruin.

One of those rare men uncorrupted by vast power, Lincoln has been more written about than any other head of state with the possible exception of Napoleon.

But the thing that undoubtedly would please Abraham Lincoln most about his present status is that, of all the giant figures of mankind they read about in their history books, he is the one most loved by children.

They feel that they are struggling alone in a world of foolish grownups, and they sense that he was, too.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — Four out of five corporations are predicting that profits will go on rising in 1966 for the sixth year in a row.

The advance may not be as steep as last year's dazzling 20 per cent after-tax profit jump over 1964, but business firms will be doing it on their own in 1966 without help from such government stimulants as cuts in corporate and excise taxes and easing of depreciation rules.

Private polls of business expectations would put the average before-tax gain in 1966 at 6 per cent.

The only industries in which a drop this year is anticipated are Iron and steel, and autos, trucks and parts.

The largest gains this year are predicted by firms in the electrical machinery, industry, 12 per cent; nonferrous metals, fabricated metals and instruments, and rubber industries, each 10 per cent.

Increased business and general prosperity are counted upon to do the trick for most firms. But nearly half of those polled by the Mcraw-Hill Department of Economics think their profit margins will rise. They expect cost-cutting to team up with full use of facilities to assure a larger percentage of profit per dollar of sales.

Many other executives are worried about the chance of a tighter squeeze this year than last on profit margins. Rising labor costs in some industries and government frowning on price increases could spell an end to the rise in margins that helped 1965 set profit records.

Final returns still are coming in. But indications are that the total of earnings before taxes will top $74 billion for a gain of 15 per cent on the year. Net income after taxes will approach $45 billion, for a 20 per cent increase. Profits before taxes climbed 11 per cent in 1964.

The rise was slowing a bit in the final three months of 1965. But even so, the early returns show profits after taxes 16 per cent above the 1964 fourth quarter.

Dividend payments in 1965, while 10 per cent ahead of 1964, didn't go up as fast as profits. So many companies have more retained earnings to use this year in their corporate affairs, such as financing their expansion plans.

These retained earnings coupled with depreciation allowances will give corporations a cash flow which the Mcraw-Hill poll indicates could be 9 per cent ahead of last year.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

— by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D. —

Why do heart attacks occur in young, apparently healthy men and women?

The jigsaw puzzle of heart attacks has many parts, many of which are now falling into proper place. Some vacant spots still remain, but the total picture is becoming more complete and is clearly distinguishable.

The framework of the picture is our modern civilization, filled with harassed, energetic, tense and emotionally sparked daily activity.

A vast group of adult men and women are being studied all over America in an effort to track down the killer of young hearts on the basis of data compiled and studied by computers.

These are the major reasons for heart attacks:

1. High levels of fatty substances and cholesterol in the blood.
2. Uncontrolled diabetes.
3. High blood pressure.
4. Lack of regulated exercise.
5. Cigarette smoking.
6. Overweight.

These conditions are all considered as risks to the healthy heart. When they occur singly, they are less of a threat to the heart than when they occur in combination.

The American Heart Association and their research programs are trying to detect the "candidate" for a heart attack, long before it occurs.

Prevention is the key to the preservation of useful hearts.

Arteriosclerosis occurs when cholesterol begins to line and harden the inner wall of the arteries. Diet can reduce the early development of arteriosclerosis.

A single rule of dietary health is to "replace saturated fats with polyunsaturated fats." This seemingly complicated rule is actually simple.

Saturated fats are animal fats. Fats in meat, butter, cheese, whole milk, cream and solid cooking fats are the culprits.

Polyunsaturated fats are liquid vegetable oils. Corn, cottonseed, soybean, safflower, fish and poultry fats tend to lower cholesterol in the blood.

The rule again is to replace saturated fats with polyunsaturated fats.

Regular medical examinations can detect early diabetes and control high blood pressure. Cigarette smoking must be curtailed, especially in those who have a family history of heart attacks during middle age. Excess weight is a matter of sane caloric counting.

There are a few secrets left about the causes of heart attacks. Those already known are sufficient to prolong many of the lives that now are unnecessarily sacrificed.

The relationship between patient and doctor is a valuable possession. It thrives on mutual respect.

Written in Anger

By John Chamberlain

I don't know whether to write this column as a horror story or a farce. It has elements of both.

The story concerns the charges that certain solemn owls have been flinging around in New Jersey to the effect that the so-called "Rat Fink" group among the Young Republicans in that state is anti-Semitic. The evidence offered to sustain the smear is about on a par with the evidence that the late Finley Peter Dunne was anti-Irish because he parodied in a written brogue the speech of a couple of Chicago Irishmen named Dooley and Hennessy. Well, satire always misfires in our humorless age, but that does not mean that smears should go unanswered.

Lifting a song about some Nazis "shooting kikes" and "mowing the bastards down" (sung to the tune of "Jingle Bells") out of a conservative Young Republican song book, the accusers of the Young Republicans have built an elaborate edifice of nonsense. To begin with, the intent of the song, as claimed by the conservative Young Republicans, was anti - Nazi. I believe what they say because other songs in the song book kid the pants off Robert Welch, the leader of the John Birch Society, and even spoof any and all "right wing extremists,' including the anti - fluoridationists.

The anti - Welch spoof is a parody of "The Twelve Days of Christmas." It begins this way, with a reference to Welch's book, "The Politician":

('On the first day of Christmas my true love gave to me
A copy of 'The Politician.'

and it continues with such verses as:

"On the second day of Christmas my true love gave to me
Two tennis shoes" . . . . . and
"On the eleventh day of' Christmas my true love gave to me
Eleven paid informers . . ."

The song that kids both the extremists and those who hunt them is to the tune of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." It begins:

"Mine eyes have seen the horrors of the militant extreme
I've been told about their tennis shoes and eyes that madly gleam
They are armed and more fanatical than you would ever dream
I'll track down every one."

Now whether the songs are really funny, or whether they are in good taste, is one thing. But they certainly do not prove that conservative Young Republicans in New Jersey are "racist."

The horror of it all is the pain it has caused to a young man named Richard Plechner of Metuchen, New Jersey. Plechner was, until last May, the president of the Young Republicans of New Jersey, who were dominated by the conservatives. He happens to be part Jewish himself, which makes the allegation that the Rat Finks were anti-Semitic particularly ridiculous. His group got its title because of horseplay at the San Francisco Young Republican convention of 1963, when it proudly accepted the name because somebody taunted it with being a bunch of "rat finks." From then on the right wing among the Young Republicans in New Jersey were the Rat Finks, while the left wing opposition was known as the "exterminators." On a national level, the right-wing Young Republicans are the "Syndicate," and the opposition is known as the "Gangbusters." All in fun, you see.

Well, it so happens that young Mr. Plechner, the leader of the Rat Finks, in the course of fighting his own political battles in New Jersey, found himself at odds with extremists of both right and left. He supported a Rat Fink resolution last spring which censured the State of Alabama. The resolution reads:

"We protest the actions of the State of Alabama for hindering registration of Alabama voters and the shocking brutality they have used to prevent registration."

For his work in addressing this protest to Governor Wallace of Alabama, Plechner lost the presidency of his organization because of the defection of a handful of suspected Birchers from Camden County. The new president of the Jersey Young Republicans, Clark Allen, who had been a Rat Fink himself, turned on Plechner after achieving office by a right - left coalition, and lent his office to the charges about the songs.

All of this probably constitutes the biggest tempest in the smallest teapot that has ever raged in Jersey politics. It is all a huge farce. But the tragedy is that Richard Plechner, who is part Jewish himself and whose father was killed by Fascists in North Africa in World War II, finds himself being called "anti - Semitic" by people he has never seen, and accused of writing songs which he never wrote, and forced out of his job as Young Republican leader because he took a slap at Governor Wallace and the State of Alabama.

You take it from there. As for me, I'm sick of the idiotic business of making political mountains out of the merest mole hills.

Lincoln's Genius Is Unexplained

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Of all the great captains of earth the one most affectionately remembered probably is he who was born in a Kentucky log cabin 157 years ago Saturday.

Success came late and death came early to Abraham Lincoln.

There is no explaining his genius. As did those other great captains of pen and sword, William Shakespeare and Joan of Arc, he sprang seemingly from nowhere to immortal fame.

Almost from birth Lincoln appeared likely to wind up an also-ran in life's race.

He was poor and had little formal schooling. He failed in business as a storekeeper. He was unlucky in both love and politics, it seemed.

His youthful sweetheart, Ann Rutledge, died. The first woman he proposed to, Mary Owens, turned him down and explained later:

"Mr. Lincoln was deficient in those little links which make up the path of a woman's happiness."

His subsequent marriage to Mary Todd proved a stormy one.

He lost more elections than he won. Anticipating defeat in his first race for a seat in the Illinois Legislature in 1832 — and he did lose — Lincoln wrote:

"If the good people in their wisdom shall see fit to keep me in the background, I have been too familiar with disappointment to be much chagrined."

When his business failed, leaving him debt-ridden, he became a village postmaster. Had he succumbed to his tendency to melancholy and self-doubt, young Abe might well have disappeared into the mists of history, just another obscure frontier failure.

But he persisted. He turned to the study of law and grammar. Slowly his star rose. In 1856 he remarked jokingly during a losing race for senator against Stephen Douglas:

"Nobody ever expected me to be president. In my poor, lean, lank face nobody has ever seen that any cabbages were sprouting."

But he was wrong there. Four years later he had become president. And less than five years later, only 56, he was killed by an assassin. But in that brief period he had become the indispensable human fulcrum that kept the American nation from teeter-tottering into ruin.

One of those rare men uncorrupted by vast power, Lincoln has been more written about than any other head of state with the possible exception of Napoleon.

But the thing that undoubtedly would please Abraham Lincoln most about his present status is that, of all the giant figures of mankind they read about in their history books, he is the one most loved by children.

They feel that they are struggling alone in a world of foolish grownups, and they sense that he was, too.

The Business World

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK (AP) — Four out of five corporations are predicting that profits will go on rising in 1966 for the sixth year in a row.

The advance may not be as steep as last year's dazzling 20 per cent after-tax profit jump over 1964, but business firms will be doing it on their own in 1966 without help from such government stimulants as cuts in corporate and excise taxes and easing of depreciation rules.

Private polls of business expectations would put the average before-tax gain in 1966 at 6 per cent.

The only industries in which a drop this year is anticipated are Iron and steel, and autos, trucks and parts.

The largest gains this year are predicted by firms in the electrical machinery, industry, 12 per cent; nonferrous metals, fabricated metals and instruments, and rubber industries, each 10 per cent.

Increased business and general prosperity are counted upon to do the trick for most firms. But nearly half of those polled by the Mcraw-Hill Department of Economics think their profit margins will rise. They expect cost-cutting to team up with full use of facilities to assure a larger percentage of profit per dollar of sales.

Many other executives are worried about the chance of a tighter squeeze this year than last on profit margins. Rising labor costs in some industries and government frowning on price increases could spell an end to the rise in margins that helped 1965 set profit records.

Final returns still are coming in. But indications are that the total of earnings before taxes will top $74 billion for a gain of 15 per cent on the year. Net income after taxes will approach $45 billion, for a 20 per cent increase. Prifits before taxes climbed 11 per cent in 1964.

The rise was slowing a bit in the final three months of 1965. But even so, the early returns show profits after taxes 16 per cent above the 1964 fourth quarter.

Dividend payments in 1965, while 10 per cent ahead of 1964, didn't go up as fast as profits. So many companies have more retained earnings to use this year in their corporate affairs, such as financing their expansion plans.

These retained earnings coupled with depreciation allowances will give corporations a cash flow which the Mcraw-Hill poll indicates could be 9 per cent ahead of last year.

Written in Anger

By John Chamberlain

I don't know whether to write this column as a horror story or a farce. It has elements of both.

The story concerns the charges that certain solemn owls have been flinging around in New Jersey to the effect that the so-called "Rat Fink" group among the Young Republicans in that state is anti-Semitic. The evidence offered to sustain the smear is about on a par with the evidence that the late Finley Peter Dunne was anti-Irish because he parodied in a written brogue the speech of a couple of Chicago Irishmen named Dooley and Hennessy. Well, satire always misfires in our humorless age, but that does not mean that smears should go unanswered.

Lifting a song about some Nazis "shooting kikes" and "mowing the bastards down" (sung to the tune of "Jingle Bells") out of a conservative Young Republican song book, the accusers of the Young Republicans have built an elaborate edifice of nonsense. To begin with, the intent of the song, as claimed by the conservative Young Republicans, was anti - Nazi. I believe what they say because other songs in the song book kid the pants off Robert Welch, the leader of the John Birch Society, and even spoof any and all "right wing extremists,' including the anti - fluoridationists.

The anti - Welch spoof is a parody of "The Twelve Days of Christmas." It begins this way, with a reference to Welch's book, "The Politician":

('On the first day of Christmas my true love gave to me
A copy of 'The Politician.'

and it continues with such verses as:

"On the second day of Christmas my true love gave to me
Two tennis shoes" . . . . . and
"On the eleventh day of' Christmas my true love gave to me
Eleven paid informers . . ."

The song that kids both the extremists and those who hunt them is to the tune of the "Battle Hymn of the Republic." It begins:

"Mine eyes have seen the horrors of the militant extreme
I've been told about their tennis shoes and eyes that madly gleam
They are armed and more fanatical than you would ever dream
I'll track down every one."

Now whether the songs are really funny, or whether they are in good taste, is one thing. But they certainly do not prove that conservative Young Republicans in New Jersey are "racist."

The horror of it all is the pain it has caused to a young man named Richard Plechner of Metuchen, New Jersey. Plechner was, until last May, the president of the Young Republicans of New Jersey, who were dominated by the conservatives. He happens to be part Jewish himself, which makes the allegation that the Rat Finks were anti-Semitic particularly ridiculous. His group got its title because of horseplay at the San Francisco Young Republican convention of 1963, when it proudly accepted the name because somebody taunted it with being a bunch of "rat finks." From then on the right wing among the Young Republicans in New Jersey were the Rat Finks, while the left wing opposition was known as the "exterminators." On a national level, the right-wing Young Republicans are the "Syndicate," and the opposition is known as the "Gangbusters." All in fun, you see.

Well, it so happens that young Mr. Plechner, the leader of the Rat Finks, in the course of fighting his own political battles in New Jersey, found himself at odds with extremists of both right and left. He supported a Rat Fink resolution last spring which censured the State of Alabama. The resolution reads:

"We protest the actions of the State of Alabama for hindering registration of Alabama voters and the shocking brutality they have used to prevent registration."

For his work in addressing this protest to Governor Wallace of Alabama, Plechner lost the presidency of his organization because of the defection of a handful of suspected Birchers from Camden County. The new president of the Jersey Young Republicans, Clark Allen, who had been a Rat Fink himself, turned on Plechner after achieving office by a right - left coalition, and lent his office to the charges about the songs.

All of this probably constitutes the biggest tempest in the smallest teapot that has ever raged in Jersey politics. It is all a huge farce. But the tragedy is that Richard Plechner, who is part Jewish himself and whose father was killed by Fascists in North Africa in World War II, finds himself being called "anti - Semitic" by people he has never seen, and accused of writing songs which he never wrote, and forced out of his job as Young Republican leader because he took a slap at Governor Wallace and the State of Alabama.

You take it from there. As for me, I'm sick of the idiotic business of making political mountains out of the merest mole hills.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Grin and Fight It!

DEAR ABBY: About three months ago I noticed that my husband started talking with an English accent. I kidded him about it, but thought no more about it. Now that I look back, it was about that time that he started sprucing up quite a lot for work. On Thanksgiving Day a woman called here asking for my husband. SHE had a very broad English accent. I started putting two and two together. My husband is an executive with a large firm, and they had a Christmas party to which the wives were invited. There I met "THE ENGLISH ACCENT" — a shapely, auburn-haired, pretty but hard-looking woman who was somebody's secretary. She tried to be especially sweet and friendly to me, but I was uncomfortable around her because I sensed something was wrong. I still do. Have you any suggestions for a woman who suspects that her husband might be straying a bit?

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: Yes; she doesn't make any wild accusations unless she has the evidence. And she doesn't give her husband threats she has no intention of carrying out. And she doesn't tear up the scenery, dissolve into tears and put on one of those "you-don't-love-me-anymore" scenes. She redoubles her efforts to be the charming, understanding, sensible girl he married. And between prayers, she waits.

DEAR ABBY: About three weeks ago I met a real neat kid. We hit it off swell together. He asked for my telephone number and I gave it to him. The next day he called me and we made a date for that Friday night. He never showed up and he never called. Yesterday I bumped into him by accident and he said he was sorry about what happened last Friday, but something unexpected came up and he couldn't make it. He asked if he could see me that night and I said yes. Well, he did the same thing. He didn't show up and he didn't call. Next Saturday night my girl friend is giving a party and she told me to bring my own guy. Do you think I should give this kid another chance? I still like him.

HOLES IN MY HEAD

DEAR HOLES: If you do, you should borrow the rocks in HIS head to fill up the holes in YOURS.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is the friendly type and we always have folks dropping in to visit with us in the evening. I don't mind when a woman comes over alone because I just go in the other room and read or watch television while the women talk. But there is this one woman who has been coming over a lot lately. She is lonesome because her husband shot himself last spring. This woman talks like a machine, Abby. And she talks so loud that even when she's in the next room she drowns out the television set. She even comes into the room where I am trying to read and starts talking to me. I told my wife to think of some way to keep her from coming over here, and she says she can't think of any way and, besides, she likes her company. Is there a solution?

NO PATIENCE

DEAR NO: If your wife likes her company, suggest that SHE go over and visit HER, and head her off.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Grin and Fight It!

DEAR ABBY: About three months ago I noticed that my husband started talking with an English accent. I kidded him about it, but thought no more about it. Now that I look back, it was about that time that he started sprucing up quite a lot for work. On Thanksgiving Day a woman called here asking for my husband. SHE had a very broad English accent. I started putting two and two together. My husband is an executive with a large firm, and they had a Christmas party to which the wives were invited. There I met "THE ENGLISH ACCENT" — a shapely, auburn-haired, pretty but hard-looking woman who was somebody's secretary. She tried to be especially sweet and friendly to me, but I was uncomfortable around her because I sensed something was wrong. I still do. Have you any suggestions for a woman who suspects that her husband might be straying a bit?

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: Yes; she doesn't make any wild accusations unless she has the evidence. And she doesn't give her husband threats she has no intention of carrying out. And she doesn't tear up the scenery, dissolve into tears and put on one of those "you-don't-love-me-anymore" scenes. She redoubles her efforts to be the charming, understanding, sensible girl he married. And between prayers, she waits.

DEAR ABBY: About three weeks ago I met a real neat kid. We hit it off swell together. He asked for my telephone number and I gave it to him. The next day he called me and we made a date for that Friday night. He never showed up and he never called. Yesterday I bumped into him by accident and he said he was sorry about what happened last Friday, but something unexpected came up and he couldn't make it. He asked if he could see me that night and I said yes. Well, he did the same thing. He didn't show up and he didn't call. Next Saturday night my girl friend is giving a party and she told me to bring my own guy. Do you think I should give this kid another chance? I still like him.

HOLES IN MY HEAD

DEAR HOLES: If you do, you should borrow the rocks in HIS head to fill up the holes in YOURS.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is the friendly type and we always have folks dropping in to visit with us in the evening. I don't mind when a woman comes over alone because I just go in the other room and read or watch television while the women talk. But there is this one woman who has been coming over a lot lately. She is lonesome because her husband shot himself last spring. This woman talks like a machine, Abby. And she talks so loud that even when she's in the next room she drowns out the television set. She even comes into the room where I am trying to read and starts talking to me. I told my wife to think of some way to keep her from coming over here, and she says she can't think of any way and, besides, she likes her company. Is there a solution?

NO PATIENCE

DEAR NO: If your wife likes her company, suggest that SHE go over and visit HER, and head her off.

Rice Suffers 27th Straight Cage Defeat

62-Foot Goal Is Scored by St. Joe Star

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You might think a field goal from 62 feet out and a 27th consecutive defeat would be records in major college basketball. Not so.

Cliff Anderson threw in the 62-footer at the halftime buzzer at the Palestra in Philadelphia Friday night in helping the eighth-ranked St. Joseph's Hawks crush the Georgetown, D.C. Hoyas 111-73. This is far short of the record heave of 84 feet 11 inches by George Linn of Alabama against North Carolina at Tuscaloosa, Ala., 11 years ago.

The Rice Owls suffered their 27th straight loss, including their final 10 games last season by bowing at home to Southern Methodist 99-78. This is 10 games short of the longest losing streak 37, for a major college set by The Citadel from January, 1954, to December, 1956.

In some quarters it was believed the Owls had lost their last 12 games a year ago, making their losing streak 29, but Bill Whitmore, sports information director at Rice, said 27 is correct.

Johnny Moates' layup with four seconds left gave the Richmond Spiders an upset 84-82 home court victory over West Virginia. In other developments Princeton, Penn and Columbia remained tied for the lead in the Ivy League, Santa Clara knocked U. of Pacific out of a first place tie in the West Coast Athletic Conference, and Oregon State stayed on top in the Pacific Athletic Conference.

Anderson's 62-footer helped make him high scorer with 19 points for St. Joseph's, the only team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action. The victory, whigh snapped Georgetown's eight-game winning streak, came in the second game of a doubleheader. Penn beat Yale 62-58 in the opener on Stan Pawlak's 20-footer with 73 seconds left to break a 57-57 tie.

In the other Ivy games Princeton downed Brown 79-67, Columbia whipped Dartmouth 85-60, and Cornell whipped Harvard 109-96. All were home court victories.

Moates took a perfect pass from Tom Green to score his winning basket for Richmond and snap West Virginia's eight-game victory streak. "If I'd missed this layup, I'd have kept right on running," Moates said.

San Francisco took over the lead in the WCAC with a 87-67 road victory over the St. Mary's Gaels while Santa Clara, playing at home, defeated U. of Pacific 78-72.

Oregon State upped its first place PAC record to 6-1 by defeating California at home 63-50. UCLA took over second place by whipping Washington State, the team which beat the Bruins last week, 88-61 at home. Oregon, also playing at home, knocked Stanford out of a second place tie by whipping the Indians 66-57. Washington scored an upset 76-73 road victory over Southern California.

Rhode Island stayed on top of the Yankee Conference with an 88-64 road triumph over Massachusetts. Other road victories were scored by Xavier of Ohio over Kent State 85-76, Seattle over Portland 92-64 and Brigham Young over Utah State 96 88.

Wyoming and Army each won at home. The Cowboys downed Denver 89-69, and the Cadets defeated St. Peters of New Jersey 64-58.

Westfall Downs Wildcats To Edge Closer to Crown

Westfall clinched at least a share of the Scioto Valley Conference basketball crown Friday night by stopping Laurelville, 69-60, on the Wildcats' floor.

The Mustangs have a perfect 4-0 record in SVC competition. Only Piketon, winner of one game this season, stands between them and undisputed possession of the cage tilt.

Westfall started out with a full court press. Although they gave up some easy buckets, they also forced them into 14 first half turnovers.

The score found the Mustangs leading 13-10 at the end of the first eight minutes, 37-24 at the intermission and 55-39 at the end of three quarters.

NEIL COLEMAN and Tom Hamman combined for 18 points each to lead the winning Westfall attack, while Brad Thompson contributed 11. Ray Mowery had nine markers, Tom Beard six and Tom Scribner seven.

For the Wildcats, Rick Unger notched 16, Dwight Woodward and Mike Rose had ten each.

The Westfall marksmen hit 24 of 71 shots from the field for a 33 per cent average and 21 of 36 at the foul line for 58 per cent. They pulled 34 rebounds off the boards compared to 33 for Laurelville. Coleman and Beard had 11 and 10 rebounds respectively.

The Laurelville Reserves won the preliminary tilt, 46-44. It was the 15th win compared to three loses for the Wildkittens. The little Mustangs have won five and lost 10.

Next action for Westfall comes Feb. 19 in the Teays Valley Sectional tournament when they tangle with Columbus St. Mary at 2:30 p. m.

A game with Piketon originally scheduled Feb. 18 has been postponed until Feb. 21. An encounter with Hamilton slated the same evening as the tournament game has been cancelled.

Second Half Brings Loss To Kent '5'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kent State won the first half but lost the game as the Flashes of the Mid-American Conference tried to add some non-conference luster to a so-far dismal season Friday night.

Kent led Xavier of Cincinnati, 46-45, at halftime, but didn't score for the first four minutes of the second half and lost 85-76.

John Gorman scored 20 points for Xavier while Fred Albrecht and Doug Sims hit 24 and 21 points, respectively, to pace Kent.

Otterbein beat Central State 56-53, Malone beat Concordia 53-50 and John Carroll upset Eastern Michigan 89-86. Thiel of Pennsylvania pulled out of the Presidents' Conference cellar by beating Case Tech 78-63.

Central State led 51-50 with 42 seconds left, but Otter Don Carlos connected on two free throws and Mike Grayem added two more with 27 seconds to go.

Central State's Clarence Lane came back with a basket,but two more free throws by Carlos, who ended up with 29, sealed the victory. Ken Wilburn, with 18, led Central State.

Malone's Bob Durris hit a jumper with 15 seconds left and the Pioneers added two foul shots to defeat Concordia.

Four foul shots by Sherman Katz, two with 1:25 left, did the job as John Carroll edged the Hurons out of first place in the Presidents' Conference. Bethany of West Virginia now holds the top spot. Carroll now is 4-3 in the league.

The Dogers' Sandy Koufax now has a career total of 2,079 strikeouts in 2,033 innings pitched for a lifetime average of 9.35 per game — best record among 1,000-inning pitchers in major league history.

TV Youth Loop Directors Adopt Equipment Rule

The Teays Valley Youth Baseball officials have adopted a resolution that any equipment purchased by the league must be worn by any and all members of any team in the loop during the season.

The action was part of the regular business conducted this week when the group met with Marvin Hicks, president.

The league will sponsor a dance April 22 at Ashville Elementary School from 8-11 p. m. Jerry Rasor will be at the event.

It was voted to sanction the scholarship funds set up by the Waldon Youth Foundation.

A recent motion permitting boys 7 to 14 years of age to register was rescinded and the age limit was extended to include boys ages 7 to 15 years.

Registration for all boys and girls desiring to compete this summer will be held Mar. 5 at Ashville Elementary School at 1 p. m. and again at 7 p. m.

Bob Pettit, former LSU and St. Louis Hawks star, and former Boston Celtic Bob Cousy were cut from the basketball squad during their early high school playing days.

Rice Suffers 27th Straight Cage Defeat

62-Foot Goal Is Scored by St. Joe Star

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

You might think a field goal from 62 feet out and a 27th consecutive defeat would be records in major college basketball. Not so.

Cliff Anderson threw in the 62-footer at the halftime buzzer at the Palestra in Philadelphia Friday night in helping the eighth-ranked St. Joseph's Hawks crush the Georgetown, D.C. Hoyas 111-73. This is far short of the record heave of 84 feet 11 inches by George Linn of Alabama against North Carolina at Tuscaloosa, Ala., 11 years ago.

The Rice Owls suffered their 27th straight loss, including their final 10 games last season by bowing at home to Southern Methodist 99-78. This is 10 games short of the longest losing streak 37, for a major college set by The Citadel from January, 1954, to December, 1956.

In some quarters it was believed the Owls had lost their last 12 games a year ago, making their losing streak 29, but Bill Whitmore, sports information director at Rice, said 27 is correct.

Johnny Moates' layup with four seconds left gave the Richmond Spiders an upset 84-82 home court victory over West Virginia. In other developments Princeton, Penn and Columbia remained tied for the lead in the Ivy League, Santa Clara knocked U. of Pacific out of a first place tie in the West Coast Athletic Conference, and Oregon State stayed on top in the Pacific Athletic Conference.

Anderson's 62-footer helped make him high scorer with 19 points for St. Joseph's, the only team in The Associated Press Top Ten to see action. The victory, whigh snapped Georgetown's eight-game winning streak, came in the second game of a doubleheader. Penn beat Yale 62-58 in the opener on Stan Pawlak's 20-footer with 73 seconds left to break a 57-57 tie.

In the other Ivy games Princeton downed Brown 79-67, Columbia whipped Dartmouth 85-60, and Cornell whipped Harvard 109-96. All were home court victories.

Moates took a perfect pass from Tom Green to score his winning basket for Richmond and snap West Virginia's eight-game victory streak. "If I'd missed this layup, I'd have kept right on running," Moates said.

San Francisco took over the lead in the WCAC with a 87-67 road victory over the St. Mary's Gaels while Santa Clara, playing at home, defeated U. of Pacific 78-72.

Oregon State upped its first place PAC record to 6-1 by defeating California at home 63-50. UCLA took over second place by whipping Washington State, the team which beat the Bruins last week, 88-61 at home. Oregon, also playing at home, knocked Stanford out of a second place tie by whipping the Indians 66-57. Washington scored an upset 76-73 road victory over Southern California.

Rhode Island stayed on top of the Yankee Conference with an 88-64 road triumph over Massachusetts. Other road victories were scored by Xavier of Ohio over Kent State 85-76, Seattle over Portland 92-64 and Brigham Young over Utah State 96-88.

Wyoming and Army each won at home. The Cowboys downed Denver 89-69, and the Cadets defeated St. Peters of New Jersey 64-58.

Westfall Downs Wildcats To Edge Closer to Crown

Westfall clinched at least a share of the Scioto Valley Conference basketball crown Friday night by stopping Laurelville, 69-60, on the Wildcats' floor.

The Mustangs have a perfect 4-0 record in SVC competition. Only Piketon, winner of one game this season, stands between them and undisputed possession of the cage tilt.

Westfall started out with a full court press. Although they gave up some easy buckets, they also forced them into 14 first half turnovers.

The score found the Mustangs leading 13-10 at the end of the first eight minutes, 37-24 at the intermission and 55-39 at the end of three quarters.

* * *

NEIL COLEMAN and Tom Hamman combined for 18 points each to lead the winning Westfall attack, while Brad Thompson contributed 11. Ray Mowery had nine markers, Tom Beard six and Tom Scribner seven.

For the Wildcats, Rick Unger notched 16, Dwight Woodward and Mike Rose had ten each.

The Westfall marksmen hit 24 of 71 shots from the field for a 33 per cent average and 21 of 36 at the foul line for 58 per cent. They pulled 34 rebounds off the boards compared to 33 for Laurelville. Coleman and Beard had 11 and 10 rebounds respectively.

The Laurelville Reserves won the preliminary tilt, 46-44. It was the 15th win compared to three loses for the Wildkittens. The little Mustangs have won five and lost 10.

Next action for Westfall comes Feb. 19 in the Teays Valley Sectional tournament when they tangle with Columbus St. Mary at 2:30 p. m.

A game with Piketon originally scheduled Feb. 18 has been postponed until Feb. 21. An encounter with Hamilton slated the same evening as the tournament game has been cancelled.

Second Half Brings Loss To Kent '5'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kent State won the first half but lost the game as the Flashes of the Mid-American Conference tried to add some non-conference luster to a so-far dismal season Friday night.

Kent led Xavier of Cincinnati, 46-45, at halftime, but didn't score for the first four minutes of the second half and lost 85-76.

John Gorman scored 20 points for Xavier while Fred Albrecht and Doug Sims hit 24 and 21 points, respectively, to pace Kent.

Otterbein beat Central State 56-53, Malone beat Concordia 53-50 and John Carroll upset Eastern Michigan 89-86. Thiel of Pennsylvania pulled out of the Presidents' Conference cellar by beating Case Tech 78-63.

Central State led 51-50 with 42 seconds left, but Otter Don Carlos connected on two free throws and Mike Grayem added two more with 27 seconds to go.

Central State's Clarence Lane came back with a basket,but two more free throws by Carlos, who ended up with 29, sealed the victory. Ken Wilburn, with 18, led Central State.

Malone's Bob Durris hit a jumper with 15 seconds left and the Pioneers added two foul shots to defeat Concordia.

Four foul shots by Sherman Katz, two with 1:25 left, did the job as John Carroll edged the Hurons out of first place in the Presidents' Conference. Bethany of West Virginia now holds the top spot. Carroll now is 4-3 in the league.

The Dogers' Sandy Koufax now has a career total of 2,079 strikeouts in 2,033 innings pitched for a lifetime average of 9.35 per game — best record among 1,000-inning pitchers in major league history.

TV Youth Loop Directors Adopt Equipment Rule

The Teays Valley Youth Baseball officials have adopted a resolution that any equipment purchased by the league must be worn by any and all members of any team in the loop during the season.

The action was part of the regular business conducted this week when the group met with Marvin Hicks, president.

The league will sponsor a dance April 22 at Ashville Elementary School from 8-11 p. m. Jerry Rasor will be at the event.

It was voted to sanction the scholarship funds set up by the Waldon Youth Foundation.

A recent motion permitting boys 7 to 14 years of age to register was rescinded and the age limit was extended to include boys ages 7 to 15 years.

Circleville Tigers Topple Hosts In 68-63 Battle at Washington

By STEVE JONES

Circleville, trailing by as much as nine points in the first half, bounced back in the second interlude behind a 23-point scoring effort by Tim Stonerock to defeat Washington, 68-63, Friday night on the Blue Lions' floor.

The win gives Circleville a 3-6 record in the South Central Ohio League and boosts them out of the cellar for the first time since the Tigers dedefeated Greenfield at the beginning of the season.

Stonerock had 11 points in the first half and finished the tilt with a high of 34.

Taking 26 shots from the field, his hot hand connected on 13. He converted eight of 11 at the charity stripe.

* * *

RIGHT behind him in the scoring column was another junior, Danny Speakman, who zipped six of eight shots through the nets from the field and made good on three of five charity tosses.

Joe Winner had eight points — all at the foul line and two after the game had ended. Jimmy Diltz scored six, Danny Gibbs three and Scott McFarland two.

For the host team, Dennis Clay's 19 points was the best effort.

The win avenged an earlier loss handed the Tigers in the Mill St. gymnasium by the Blue Lions. However, Stonerock was sidelined with an ankle injury during that tilt.

Last night's game started with Washington C. H. controlling the tip, scoring the first basket and dominating the boards during most of the initial half.

With the score 13-7 at the end of the first period, Washington had eight rebounds, compared to five for Circleville.

* * *

BY HALFTIME, the host crew was leading 30-25. They had captured 17 rebounds compared to 10 for Circleville. The Roundtowners hit 36.8 per cent of its shots in the first half.

Stonerock almost singlehandledly broke the game open in the second half.

The Washington center controlled the tip, batting the ball toward a Blue Lion stationed near the Circleville net. But Stonerock deftly stole the ball and promptly made a bucket.

Seconds later the scoring ace stole the ball again, drove in for a layup and was fouled just as he canned the bucket. He converted the foul shot.

Still within the first half minute of play, he took the ball again and headed toward the basket. This time he missed, but was fouled in the act of shooting. He connected on both shots as the Tigers moved into a 32-30 lead.

Stonerock scored again before Washington could get its offense in gear. The Blue Lions finally started moving with 5:46 showing on the clock. And as the third quarter got under way the score was knotted, 46-46.

SHORTLY after the final quarter started, the Blue Lions moved to a 55-50 lead. With 4:57 to go, they still were out front, 57-52.

Again Stonerock boosted the Tigers into a lead, scoring three straight buckets. The score at this point read 58-57 with 2:46 to go. Gibbs then hit both ends of a one-and-one situation to send the count to 60-57 and Stonerock came back on a good assist from Diltz to put Circleville ahead, 62-57. At this point, the scoreboard clock showed 1:34 remaining.

Washington pulled to within three points with less than a minute to go. But Stonerock scored again to make the margin five.

Washington narrowed it to three again and then Winner was fouled as the buzzer sounded. He sank both foul shots as the fans poured onto the floor.

Washington has a 2-6 record in South Central Ohio League competition.

The Tigers host Pleasant View tonight. Next weekend, they close out the season against Miami Trace and Teays Valley, both home games.

Wondrous Willie Mays Signs 2-Year Contract

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays says that for the next two years all he'll have to worry about is playing baseball.

He might "think about retiring" when he reaches 40, or maybe not until he gets to 45.

Right now the National League's Most Valuable Player of 1965 is happy about two things —first a contract with the San Francisco Giants which should bring him about a quarter of a million dollars over the next two seasons, and secondly:

"I'm looking forward to going to spring training. I've been doing so much traveling and going to so many banquets, I'm actually looking forward to spring training."

A host of baseball records are in reach of Wondrous Willie, the 34-year-old who 11 times has been named the league's All-Star centerfielder. To this he says:

"I never like goals. I may be able to break a lot of records, but I don't like to think about them, even though they may be within reach."

President Horace Stoneham, who announced Mays' new two-year contract Friday, didn't divulge terms, but said, "We believe that this contract makes Willie the highest salaried player in baseball history."

An official of the club indicated it was for about $125,000 a year.

Besides Mays, other players to have reached the $100,000 level are Stan Musial, Ted Williams, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle. Willie first became a 100 grander in 1963.

Mays does aim at two major records — the 511 National League home run career mark by Mel Ott and the 534 by Jimmy Foxx, the most ever hit in major league baseball by a right-handed hitter.

Swinging from the left side, Ruth smashed 714 for the all-time mark.

To date, Mays has hit 505 homers, 318 of them after the Giants moved from New York to San Francisco in 1958.

In 1965, he hit a career high of 52 homers to lead the majors and his 359 total bases also were high for both leagues. He was the National League leader in runs scored with 119, drove in 112 and hit at a .317 average.

Wilt Is Near Scoring Mark

Chamberlain Is Shy 66 Points of Mark

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wilt Chamberlain is closing in on the National Basketball Association's career scoring record and his Philadelphia 76ers would love to celebrate the occasion by moving into first place in the league's Eastern Division.

Both objectives moved closer Friday night when Chamberlain poured in 32 points as Philadelphia whipped Cincinnati 113-94. That left Wilt 66 points shy of Bob Pettit's career mark of 20,880 points scored in 11 seasons. Chamberlain has played less than seven.

The 76ers' victory left Philadelphia alone in second place, 2 ½ games back of Boston which overcame San Francisco 99-96. In Friday night's other game, New York ripped Detroit 122-107.

Cincinnati, which has lost six of the last eight, trailed throughout after the 76ers opened an early first period gap that widened to 16 points. Oscar Robertson, saddled with five personal fouls, managed just 17 points for the slumping Royals.

Sam Jones and John Havlicek keyed the Celtics' attack as Boston beat San Francisco.

Jones had 25 points and Havlicek 18 for the first place Celts, and both did the heavy work in the final period that held the Warriors off.

Nate Thurmond, Rick Barry and Paul Neumann put on an amazing three man performance, accounting for all but 11 of the Warrior points between them. Thurmond scored 34, Barry 31 and Neumann 20.

Walt Bellamy scored 24 points and pulled down 19 rebounds as the Knickerbockers continued their spurt that has produced seven victories in the last 10 starts.

All five Knick starters scored 14 points or more, and New York clocked on 22 of 24 free throws. Joe Strawder scored 25 points for the Pistons.

Dickinson Leads by 2 In Phoenix

PHOENI,X Arix. (AP)—Slim Gardner Dickinson carried a new putter and a two stroke lead into today's second round of the $60,000 Phoenix Open Tournament.

Dickinson, off to a shaky start on the pro tour this year, rammed home five lengthy birdie putts Friday as he carded a five under par 66 on the 6,765-yard Phoenix Country Club course made soggy by recent rains.

Mason Rudolph was two strokes behind with a 68, and Bob Rosburg, Dock Goss, Dick Crawford and Charles Coody were tied three strokes off the pace at 69.

Dickinson, using for the first time a putter given him last month by a friend in San Diego, knocked in putts of 14, 35, 10, 12 and 12 feet for birdies and one-putted twice for pars.

Doug Sanders and Arnold Palmer, who closed with a rush to tie for first at the end of regulation play in last week's Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic in Palm Springs, Calif., kept themselves within striking distance of the Phoenix title.

Sanders, who beat Palmer in a playoff for the Hope title, shot a one under par 70, and Arnie carded a 71. Palmer played subpar golf with all but his putter, missing several makeable birdie putts.

State Officials Claim Rhodes Foe Failed To Observe Election Law

By REED SMITH

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State officials assert William L. White of Mount Vernon lost out as a GOP candidate for governor because he failed to keep up with Ohio's model election laws rather than from any frameup, as he claims.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown, a stickler for election law compliance, disqualified White as the only opponent of Gov. James A. Rhodes in the May 3 primary because county election boards checking his petitions found too many invalid signatures.

White's claim that Republicans wanted a completely unopposed state ticket, "in the Russian manner," apparently stemmed from the prospect that he would head the GOP ticket if anything happened to remove Rhodes before the primary.

Without White or Rhodes on the ballot, the Republican State Committee would be called on to pick another primary gubernatorial candidate.

But with White qualified, in the absence of Rhodes, the committee could not act and White would be nominated, unless Republicans could muster a 15 per cent write-in vote for another candidate, a task difficult to achieve.

With White heading their ticket, Republicans say with a shudder that other GOP nominees could be swamped next November along with White, who got only a token vote against Rhodes in 1962 primary.

The 70-year-old White, who ran for U.S. senator in 1950 as a Democrat, insists he is the victim of a political plot and says he will attempt to prove it in court.

White told Brown he filled in addresses of several petition signers, the same as in 1962 to qualify as Rhodes' primary opponent.

"I didn't know it was against the law," White volunteered. He added that Brown became "too technical all at once."

Brown said election board checks left White with only 785 of the minimum 1,000 valid names needed to qualify.

Aides of the secretary of state noted that Brown has waged a continuing drive for election boards to tighten their operations. They asserted the results apparently caught up with White.

In that connection, two other candidates for state offices may be in jeopardy. Both are Democrats.

Brown's office said the number of valid names on petitions of Charles Pugliese, Steubenville hotel man seeking both abbreviated and full term nominations as state auditor, and James H. Bell, Cleveland councilman running for secretary of state, are close to the minimum as checking continues.

Pugliese filed for the full four - year term as auditor against Thomas E. Ferguson of Columbus, son of former state auditor and treasurer, Joseph T. Ferguson, and against two others for the short term that runs between the November election and start of the full term next Jan. 9.

Other Democrats seeking the short term are Clarence H. Knixley of Columbus, former state treasurer, and Richard Borror, Columbus real estate man.

Bell filed to oppose James D. Nolan of Cleveland for the secretary of state nomination. Nolan's court suit led to reapportionment of the state legislature.

Saturn Rocket Test Range Gives Old Area New Life

PICAYUNE, Miss. (AP) — Rich in virgin pine forests, the section of southern Mississippi adjoining the muddy Pearl River seemed at the turn of the century to have been blessed with an endless bounty.

Zainesville, on the banks of the river, reigned as the hub of the logging industry that sent a steady stream of lumber to the Gulf of Mexico.

But it was the old story of too much, too fast. The forests along the river played out. The thriving communities withered, became poor fishing and hunting villages — until the space age came along.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration decided that the backwoods area around Zainesville was a choice location for testing the mammoth Saturn rockets intended to blast men to the moon.

So a $260 million establishment was carved from the woods and fields. In the process, centuries-old communities were wiped off the map.

The space agency purchased 13,000 acres for the testing facility, including the entire community of Zainesville. It took perpetual leases on 128,000 surrounding acres to create a "buffer zone."

The huge Saturn boosters are so powerful that engineers feared the great rumbling vibrations from the engines would damage homes, shatter windows and possibly cause physical injury to people several miles from the site.

Owners of land in the buffer zone can farm, hunt, fish and raise livestock on their property, but they cannot live there.

The new space agency complex, known as the Mississippi Test Facility, consists of a series of modern office buildings and three massive concrete and steel test towers that rise from the flat land. The test stands, eight miles east of Picayune, will hold the rockets for the crucial ground firings that must precede the actual launches from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The Pearl River once again is playing an important role in the economic life of the area. It links the test facility with NASA's sprawling Michoud assembly plant in New Orleans, 40 miles away by water, where the Saturn V first stage — the world's largest rocket — is constructed. The boosters from Michoud will travel by barge on the intracoastal waterway to the Pearl, then up the river to a man-made canal that curves 7½ miles into the test facility.

Issues Now Before Congress Reviewed at Chamber Session

Major issues and problems confronting the second session of the 89th Congress were reviewed Friday during a special Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce sponsored meeting.

Offering observations on the looming congressional activity was John Senn, administrative assistant for the Ohio Chamber Legislative staff. Approximately 25 local persons participated in the luncheon meet, conducted at Tink's Tavern.

The program was arranged by G. Ninde Lawson and his Chamber Congressional Action Committee.

Senn directed his remarks toward the growing struggle between states and the federal government in the clash for authority. He referred to past congressional experiences and commented on trends that can be expected in the future.

* * *

ASIDE from the key Viet Nam policy issue, the Ohio Chamber official classified pending congressional activity into five categories: 1. workmen's compensation; 2. federalization of unemployment compensation; 3. minimum hours and wages; 4. civil rights, 5. section 14b of the Taft-Hartley law.

Senn pointed out that the object of his talk was to present an interchange of ideas and opinions on legislative issues and procedures.

He summed up his remarks that the labor laws trend during the next few years will depend on Congress and the occupant of the White House.

A portion of the meeting was devoted to a question and answer period. One inquiry centered on the express objective of opposing federal domination in government. The speaker replied that the common consensus in most states is to keep government "close to home" as a means of keeping laws more efficient and less complex.

Several local industries were represented at the session by management personnel.

mosphere of objectivity, fairness, judiciousness."

As for the testimony of retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin and former diplomat George F. Kennan, Johnson said. "I don't see that they have done any harm to anybody."

Although he hasn't read the transcript of their testimony, Johnson said, "I gather from what Gen. Gavin said in summary there is not a great deal of difference between what he and Kennan are saying and what the government is doing.

"No one wants to escalate the war and no one wants to lose any more men than is necessary. No one wants to surrender and get out. At least no one admits they do. So I don't see that there is any great difference of opinion."

Johnson said Gavin and Kennan were "the only two experts that I have seen put on" and that Gavin "said he didn't want to get out. He said he didn't want to escalate. That is the way we feel about it."

As for Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia, Johnson said "he didn't want to escalate, but that he didn't want to pick up and run out.

On other questions relating to Viet Nam, Johnson said:

— He hopes to meet in Honolulu again with South Viet Nam's leaders "maybe in the middle of the year, and see what has been done." He said, "We are spending more economic money in that country than any place in the world and we desire doing it expeditiously, efficiently and getting results."

— "When you get Hanoi ready to negotiate, I think that the viewpoint of all the people interested in negotiations can be considered and no one will have any trouble hearing them. If you are prepared to produce Hanoi, I am prepared to negotiate." He had been asked about statements by South Vietnamese leaders that they would not negotiate with the Viet Cong.

— "I think I have taken every single suggestion that anyone has made that seemed to offer any possibility and carried it out." He referred to the recent 37-day pause in bombing North Vietnamese targets and to various U.S. peace initiatives through the United Nations and elsewhere.

"We have no present plans" to call up reserve units, but he didn't want to make any firm prediction for the future. "You all are very critical of Mr. McNamara when he makes predictions," Johnson said.

World Church Council Seeks Christian Unity

GENEVA (AP) — A hard-working organization, now in its 18th year, is trying to give a true meaning of love and charity to Christian endeavor in the world.

That is the primary aim of the World Council of Churches — unity of all those who believe in Christ.

Toward this distant aim, it spends $10 million a year to help men throughout the world to survive difficulties and have faith.

The nerve center of this activity is a modern, box-like building facing the sharp Alpine peaks beyond Geneva. Today the World Council groups more than 200 Protestant, Anglican, Orthodox and Old Catholic churches in 80 nations.

The year 1965 saw a milestone in its unity efforts — preparatory talks between representatives of Protestantism and Roman Catholicism. Few believe that a union of the two communities is around the corner. But contact has been made and more meetings have been scheduled.

On the Protestant side, the World Council of Churches has been spearheading the drive, pleading with all those "who confess Jesus Christ as God and Savior" to "find their unity in Him."

The council is not a superchurch. It does not seek to enforce conformity. It was formed to forge unity — and so far the results have surpassed its founders' expectations.

The organization's functions range from aid to the victims of a typhoon in the Philippines, to resettlement of White Russian refugees from Hong Kong, to stimulating free discussion in Spain, to establishing theological scholarships.

"We have come a long way," says the secretary general, Dr. W. A. Visser't Hooft, who has headed the World Council since its formal founding in 1948.

"We began at the time when churches had no relations. Now there is constant traffic of ideas, a host of ways in which churches are involved with one another."

The backbone of its operations are member churches throughout the world — from Communist Romania to Tanzania in East Africa.

The unity drive began in 1938, was stymied by World War II, finally resulted in the formation of the council in 1948.

The council describes itself as a "fellowship gathered for study, witness, service and the advancement of unity. It includes in its membership churches in more than 80 countries living under all sorts of governments, and its life reflects the immense variety and richness of Christian tradition and culture."

At the last count there were 212 member churches and eight associate members — churches with membership of less than 10,000.

A year ago, at a meeting of the council's Central Committee in Lagos, Nigeria, it was proposed that exploratory talks be held with representatives of the Vatcian. Two rounds of talks were held in Geneva, in May and November, with six representatives from the Vatican and eight from the council. This week Vatican representatives are attending the annual meeting of the World Council's 100-member Central Committee.

But officials of the World Council caution against undue hopes that unity of Christendom is near. The council stresses that it is "in no way a substitute for its member churches in their relations with Rome and has no authority to enter into negotiations with the Vatican on any subject."

"In its realm, as in all others, its job is to promote ecumenical dialogue among its member churches; to provide the framework within which they can consult together about their relations with the Roman Catholic Church; and to keep them supplied with up-to-date information about interconfessional developments."

A large part of the council's activities center on youth. This ranges from leadership training for young African officials to organizing discussion circles in Spain, a Catholic country.

"We want political action and not political side-taking," says Albert Van Den Heuvel, 33, the head of the youth section.

"Our biggest problem is that young people throughout the world find that church is irrelevant," he says. "We are trying to break this attitude and it is a long-range program."

The most spectacular of the councils activities is its refugee program. The council raises money, coordinates its distribution, launches projects and presents them to member churches.

Every year, it helps to resettle some 12,000 refugees. Although religious beliefs play no role in aid programs, Roman Catholic applicants are generally turned over to their own organizations. The council regards the Catholic organizations as sufficiently wealthy to provide for their own community.

Much of the council's work lately has centered on restive Africa where there are about one million refugees from various political and tribal tension zones. The council also has been active in Viet Nam.

Dr. Leslie Cooke, in charge of the refugee program, said the council has also been active in Viet Nam.

Dr. Leslie Cooke, in charge of the refugee program, said the council has also been active resettling refugees from Communist-dominated Tibet, Watutsi tribesmen fleeing from Rwanda, and villagers from rebelious Mozambique and Angola, in Africa.

The center of refugee activity is no longer in Europe," says Cooke.

Dr. Visser't Hooft, the man who has animated the World Council since its creation, retires this month. Born in Haarlem, Holland, he was ordained pastor of the Netherlands Reformed Church and of the Protestant Church of Geneva. When the Provisional Committee of the World Council of Churches was formed in 1939, he was made its secretary-general, with headquarters in Geneva.

In August 1948, the first assembly named him general secretary, the post he is now leaving. A recipient of honorary degrees and author of a dozen books on religious subjects, Dr. Visser't Hooft feels the council has made enormous strides.

"Our aim was to bring the churches out of their isolation to get to know each other, learn together and cooperate," he says.

"This has been accomplished. In fact, more churches have been drawn into the movement than we dared to think."

Zainesville, on the banks of the river, reigned as the hub of the logging industry that sent a steady stream of lumber to the Gulf of Mexico.

But it was the old story of too much, too fast. The forests along the river played out. The thriving communities withered, became poor fishing and hunting villages — until the space age came along.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration decided that the backwoods area around Zainesville was a choice location for testing the mammoth Saturn rockets intended to blast men to the moon.

So a $260 million establishment was carved from the woods and fields. In the process, centuries-old communities were wiped off the map.

The space agency purchased 13,000 acres for the testing facility, including the entire community of Zainesville. It took perpetual leases on 128,000 surrounding acres to create a "buffer zone."

The huge Saturn boosters are so powerful that engineers feared the great rumbling vibrations from the engines would damage homes, shatter windows and possibly cause physical injury to people several miles from the site.

Owners of land in the buffer zone can farm, hunt, fish and raise livestock on their property, but they cannot live there.

The new space agency complex, known as the Mississippi Test Facility, consists of a series of modern office buildings and three massive concrete and steel test towers that rise from the flat land. The test stands, eight miles east of Picayune, will hold the rockets for the crucial ground firings that must precede the actual launches from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

The Pearl River once again is playing an important role in the economic life of the area. It links the test facility with NASA's sprawling Michoud assembly plant in New Orleans, 40 miles away by water, where the Saturn V first stage — the world's largest rocket — is constructed. The boosters from Michoud will travel by barge on the intracoastal waterway to the Pearl, then up the river to a man-made canal that curves 7½ miles into the test facility.

Issues Now Before Congress Reviewed at Chamber Session

Major issues and problems confronting the second session of the 89th Congress were reviewed Friday during a special Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce sponsored meeting.

Offering observations on the looming congressional activity was John Senn, administrative assistant for the Ohio Chamber Legislative staff. Approximately 25 local persons participated in the luncheon meet, conducted at Tink's Tavern.

The program was arranged by G. Ninde Lawson and his Chamber Congressional Action Committee.

Senn directed his remarks toward the growing struggle between states and the federal government in the clash for authority. He referred to past congressional experiences and commented on trends that can be expected in the future.

* * *

ASIDE from the key Viet Nam policy issue, the Ohio Chamber official classified pending congressional activity into five categories: 1. workmen's compensation; 2. federalization of unemployment compensation; 3. minimum hours and wages; 4. civil rights, 5. section 14b of the Taft-Hartley law.

Senn pointed out that the object of his talk was to present an interchange of ideas and opinions on legislative issues and procedures.

He summed up his remarks that the labor laws trend during the next few years will depend on Congress and the occupant of the White House.

A portion of the meeting was devoted to a question and answer period. One inquiry centered on the express objective of opposing federal domination in government. The speaker replied that the common consensus in most states is to keep government "close to home" as a means of keeping laws more efficient and less complex.

Several local industries were represented at the session by management personnel.

mosphere of objectivity, fairness, judiciousness."

As for the testimony of retired Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin and former diplomat George F. Kennan, Johnson said. "I don't see that they have done any harm to anybody."

Although he hasn't read the transcript of their testimony, Johnson said, "I gather from what Gen. Gavin said in summary there is not a great deal of difference between what he and Kennan are saying and what the government is doing.

"No one wants to escalate the war and no one wants to lose any more men than is necessary. No one wants to surrender and get out. At least no one admits they do. So I don't see that there is any great difference of opinion."

Johnson said Gavin and Kennan were "the only two experts that I have seen put on" and that Gavin "said he didn't want to get out. He said he didn't want to escalate. That is the way we feel about it."

As for Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia, Johnson said "he didn't want to escalate, but that he didn't want to pick up and run out.

On other questions relating to Viet Nam, Johnson said:

— He hopes to meet in Honolulu again with South Viet Nam's leaders "maybe in the middle of the year, and see what has been done." He said, "We are spending more economic money in that country than any place in the world and we desire doing it expeditiously, efficiently and getting results."

— "When you get Hanoi ready to negotiate, I think that the viewpoint of all the people interested in negotiations can be considered and no one will have any trouble hearing them. If you are prepared to produce Hanoi, I am prepared to negotiate." He had been asked about statements by South Vietnamese leaders that they would not negotiate with the Viet Cong.

— "I think I have taken every single suggestion that anyone has made that seemed to offer any possibility and carried it out." He referred to the recent 37-day pause in bombing North Vietnamese targets and to various U.S. peace initiatives through the United Nations and elsewhere.

"We have no present plans" to call up reserve units, but he didn't want to make any firm prediction for the future. "You all are very critical of Mr. McNamara when he makes predictions," Johnson said.

World Church Council Seeks Christian Unity

GENEVA (AP) — A hard-working organization, now in its 18th year, is trying to give a true meaning of love and charity to Christian endeavor in the world.

That is the primary aim of the World Council of Churches — unity of all those who believe in Christ.

Toward this distant aim, it spends $10 million a year to help men throughout the world to survive difficulties and have faith.

The nerve center of this activity is a modern, box-like building facing the sharp Alpine peaks beyond Geneva. Today the World Council groups more than 200 Protestant, Anglican, Orthodox and Old Catholic churches in 80 nations.

The year 1965 saw a milestone in its unity efforts — preparatory talks between representatives of Protestantism and Roman Catholicism. Few believe that a union of the two communities is around the corner. But contact has been made and more meetings have been scheduled.

On the Protestant side, the World Council of Churches has been spearheading the drive, pleading with all those "who confess Jesus Christ as God and Savior" to "find their unity in Him."

The council is not a superchurch. It does not seek to enforce conformity. It was formed to forge unity — and so far the results have surpassed its founders' expectations.

The organization's functions range from aid to the victims of a typhoon in the Philippines, to resettlement of White Russian refugees from Hong Kong, to stimulating free discussion in Spain, to establishing theological scholarships.

"We have come a long way," says the secretary general, Dr. W. A. Visser't Hooft, who has headed the World Council since its formal founding in 1948.

"We began at the time when churches had no relations. Now there is constant traffic of ideas, a host of ways in which churches are involved with one another."

The backbone of its operations are member churches throughout the world — from Communist Romania to Tanzania in East Africa.

The unity drive began in 1938, was stymied by World War II, finally resulted in the formation of the council in 1948.

The council describes itself as a "fellowship gathered for study, witness, service and the advancement of unity. It includes in its membership churches in more than 80 countries living under all sorts of governments, and its life reflects the immense variety and richness of Christian tradition and culture."

At the last count there were 212 member churches and eight associate members — churches with membership of less than 10,000.

A year ago, at a meeting of the council's Central Committee in Lagos, Nigeria, it was proposed that exploratory talks be held with representatives of the Vatcian. Two rounds of talks were held in Geneva, in May and November, with six representatives from the Vatican and eight from the council. This week Vatican representatives are attending the annual meeting of the World Council's 100-member Central Committee.

But officials of the World Council caution against undue hopes that unity of Christendom is near. The council stresses that it is "in no way a substitute for its member churches in their relations with Rome and has no authority to enter into negotiations with the Vatican on any subject."

"In its realm, as in all others, its job is to promote ecumenical dialogue among its member churches; to provide the framework within which they can consult together about their relations with the Roman Catholic Church; and to keep them supplied with up-to-date information about interconfessional developments."

A large part of the council's activities center on youth. This ranges from leadership training for young African officials to organizing discussion circles in Spain, a Catholic country.

"We want political action and not political side-taking," says Albert Van Den Heuvel, 33, the head of the youth section.

"Our biggest problem is that young people throughout the world find that church is irrelevant," he says. "We are trying to break this attitude and it is a long-range program."

The most spectacular of the councils activities is its refugee program. The council raises money, coordinates its distribution, launches projects and presents them to member churches.

Every year, it helps to resettle some 12,000 refugees. Although religious beliefs play no role in aid programs, Roman Catholic applicants are generally turned over to their own organizations. The council regards the Catholic organizations as sufficiently wealthy to provide for their own community.

Much of the council's work lately has centered on restive Africa where there are about one million refugees from various political and tribal tension zones. The council also has been active in Viet Nam.

Dr. Leslie Cooke, in charge of the refugee program, said the council has also been active in Viet Nam.

Dr. Leslie Cooke, in charge of the refugee program, said the council has also been active resettling refugees from Communist-dominated Tibet, Watutsi tribesmen fleeing from Rwanda, and villagers from rebelious Mozambique and Angola, in Africa.

The center of refugee activity is no longer in Europe," says Cooke.

Dr. Visser't Hooft, the man who has animated the World Council since its creation, retires this month. Born in Haarlem, Holland, he was ordained pastor of the Netherlands Reformed Church and of the Protestant Church of Geneva. When the Provisional Committee of the World Council of Churches was formed in 1939, he was made its secretary-general, with headquarters in Geneva.

In August 1948, the first assembly named him general secretary, the post he is now leaving. A recipient of honorary degrees and author of a dozen books on religious subjects, Dr. Visser't Hooft feels the council has made enormous strides.

"Our aim was to bring the churches out of their isolation to get to know each other, learn together and cooperate," he says.

"This has been accomplished. In fact, more churches have been drawn into the movement than we dared to think."
